I still have a few minutes so I will tell you how I was put to it a day or two ago. I had thought that as we would be alone the ham bone with a dish of oysters would be sufficient for dinner but just as Ellen was setting the table who should ride up but Jim and Mr Deal you may imagine I was in a predicament and all I could do was to order another dish of oysters which they fried and when I asked for more I was much mortified to find there were none but there was a dish of raw ones on the table which the gentlemen enjoyed now once more good bye.
