Hall, better known as "Tod" Hall, the "detective evangelist," died on Saturday afternoon last, at his residence in Baltimore, after a brief illness from pneumonia, aged 70 years. All the packing houses at Cambridge are filled with oysters in the shell, and 25,000 bushels are afloat and unsold in the harbor. Boston ranked next with 70,164; Baltimore third, with 66,010; Philadelphia fourth, with 30,501.

Robert Spears, a young negro, serving a term in the Frederick jail, and Sarah Carter, an inmate of the county alms house, were married in the sheriff's office, on Saturday last. The correspondent, who reports the occurrence, says that they left the office with less than $1 with which to face the world. Query: Is it not a disgrace to civilization that such a marriage was possible? Referred to the the Maryland Legislature for answer.

Many lives were lost and much vessel property destroyed by the gales that swept the Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic coast, last week. Just how many went down to death in the great seas is not known. Three barges, that had broken adrift from the tug Bohemia, were saved from being dashed to pieces by Capt. Scott, of the tug Dauntless, and his crew. The rescue of the women and children on the barges is reported to have been thrilling and heroic.

Emperor William, of Germany, was 49 years old on Monday last. According to immemorial custom, he was "awakened" by the fanfaring by the palace trumpeters and the singing of a hymn by the castle choir, at 8 o'clock.

STRANGE HAPPENINGS.

Mrs. Sarah Lang, of Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, pushed a cherry pit into her left ear, when she was eight years old. After it had been in her ear for 57 years, it was removed last week by Dr. N. D. Chapman.

Fifty negroes in a roller-skating rink on the second floor of a frame building in Chicago were thrown into a panic by an alarm of fire. They fled for the stairways without stopping to remove their skates and most of them fell in a heap to the bottom.

In a crowded restaurant, in Wheeling, W. Va., Arthur Krumbach, a waiter, 18 years old, killed himself with a revolver. While the body was lying in the morgue, two waiter girls employed in the same restaurant fought over the remains, each claiming him as her lover. The police had to take them in charge.

Patrolman Stockley heroically rescued several inmates of a burning Brooklyn tenement house on Saturday, and returned after others. One of the women, who had made her escape, returned to get her canary bird and stumbled over the body of Shockley, who had been overcome by the smoke. With the help of a policeman she got the man out.

The funeral of "Ouida" (Louise de La Ramee), best known as the author of "Under Two Flags", was a pitiful epilogue to her pitiful death, which occurred on Saturday amid squalor and poverty. She was buried on Monday, at Florence, Italy, and her grave marked with a wooden cross. Only her maid, to whom she left her last manuscripts, and a dozen dogs she had starved herself to feed, followed her to her grave.

A "strange happening" and yet not so strange after all, was the breaking up of the so called Noah's Ark act, at the Baltimore, Md., Zoo. The management had announced a new act to be put on the program this week, but two unruly bears growled "No." They were willing to appear in the cage with goats, monkeys, pigs, dogs and a pony, more than willing, but as a condition precedent to their appearing they insisted on the disappearance—down their throats—of the other animals, which they would have destroyed if the trainers had not rescued them.

Policeman Casey, of the Northeastern district, Baltimore, has the nerve. Awakened at 8 o'clock Monday morning by loud talking and swearing at the rear of his house, he looked out the window and saw a crowd, surrounding his mother-in-law, who was making the unseemly noise. Casey put on his uniform, arrested his mother-in-law, and haled her before the magistrate "Ten dollars and costs," said justice Keplinger. What Mrs. McCann said of the Justice and his good name, as she thanked him for his kindness, is not printable, but it was a plenty. Her remarks caused him to revise the first sentence and again he spoke: "The House of Correction for you for two months." It was "Casey at the bat" this time. The old lady will have her innings in two months. Look out, Casey!
