MARYLAND NEWS.

Four persons, converted at a revival meeting held in the German Baptist Brethren's Church, Hagerstown, were immersed in the icy waters of the Antietam on Saturday, by Rev. John E. Otto.

Capt. Jeremiah D. Kepner, who for 30 years has been a conductor on Pennsylvania Railroad trains running between Frederick and Lancaster, died at his home in the first named city, last week, aged 63 years.

The Senate of the United States has passed a bill appropriating $135,000 to provide a crypt in the chapel at the Naval Academy, Annapolis, as a permanent resting place for the body of John Paul Jones.

George W. Smith, Jr., the oldest practicing attorney of the Washington county bar, died at his home in Hagerstown, aged 74 years. He was a graduate of Dickinson College, and for many years the law partner of the late Governor William T. Hamilton.

Handling a cat rifle, which she did not know was loaded, Mrs. John Wright, of Frederick Junction, accidentally shot Miss Clara Stunkle, daughter of Robert Stunkle. The ball struck her in the back near the base of the spinal column. She is improving in the Frederick City Hospital.

Mrs. Sarah Devilbiss, widow of George A. Devilbiss, was found dead in the well at her home in Woodsboro. It is supposed that she went to the well to draw water, leaned over to grasp the rope after the bucket had been drawn up by the windlass, and lost her balance. She was 50 years old.

Mr. Frank A. Munsey, owner of Munsey's and other magazines, who has purchased the Baltimore Evening News, was entertained at luncheon on Monday afternoon, at the Maryland Club, Baltimore, by Mr. George R. Gaither. Mr. Munsey stated incidentally that he may move his family from New York and seek a home in Green Spring Valley.

Two suits, one agninst S. A. Nally and the other against C. A. Hesen, both saloonkeepers of Oakland, have been entered by Mrs. A. C. Whetsell, claiming $5,000 damages from each. The plaintiff alleges that she served upon both parties the required legal notice not to sell or give her husband intoxicating liquors, but that they continued to do so.

In 1906 the erection of a culvert near Big Springs Station, Washington county, by the Western Maryland Company, caused an overflow of waters on the lands of John B. Martin and damage to his property. Suit was brought for $10,000 damages. The case was removed to Frederick county for trial, and resulted last week in a verdict for $3,254. A new trial was ordered.

The annual encampment of the Department of Maryland, Grand Army of the Republic, will open April 9th, at Red Men's Hall, Baltimore, and on the evening of that day the forty-third anniversary of the Union Veterans' Association of Maryland will be celebrated with a banquet at one of the hotels. The veterans' association was formed at Appomatox on the day of the surrender of Gen. Robert E. Lee to Gen. U. S. Grant.

A Profane Silence.

Justice Harlan, of the Supreme Court, plays golf intempera tely and Justice McKenna is only a trifle less devoted to the game. They were taking their accustomed cross-country walk on the Chase links a few days ago when it came McKenna's turn to play. He built a sand tee most carefully, sized up the distance to the next hole, made wind calculations, then raised his driver, made a mighty swing and—missed. For full ten seconds he stood and looked at the little ball resting securely on its sand pile.

It was Justice Harlan who finally spoke: "That is the most profane silence I have ever heard, McKenna."—Utica Press.

No Wool Over His Eyes.

Uncle Abe, a grizzled old negro, visited a zoological gardner. He stood fascinated before a cage containing a chimpanzee, and could not be induced to move. After a while the animal came to the front of the cage, and Uncle Abe spoke to him.

"Howdy?" he said; "howdy?"

The chimpanzee not making any response, Uncle Abe chuckled and winked at him knowingly.

"Dat's right, dat de way ter do! Doan you nebber gin ter talk. Ef you does, white man put er hoe in yer han', en meck yer wuk!" he said.—Harper's Weekly.

Many a man is willing to die for his his country, but he wants to fix the date for himself.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY

GENERAL NEWS.

Smallpox is epidemic in a number of counties in Virginia. In King George county there are between fifty and one hundred cases.

The Pullman Company has discontinued the sale of liquor on its buffet, parlor, sleeping and dining cars. The order went into effect on Monday.

Thirty thousand pounds of smokeless powder exploded at the Dupont Powder Company's plant at Carney's Point, N. J., on Saturday. The powder burned like celluloid and was consumed in a minute. No lives were lost.

James Oliver, millionaire plow manufacturer, of South Bend, Indiana, inventor of the "chilled" plow, master of the largest plow manufactory in the world, whose name is known by all farmers in all lands, died on Monday, aged 85 years.

Reports from Los Angeles, Cal., confirm recent statements of a record breaking crop of lemons and oranges in that State. The prices are lower than last year but total receipts will be greater. Fruit in all sections is in excellent condition and the car service good.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Sterner, the oldest married couple in Adams county, Pa., celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary on the 29th ult. Mrs. Sterner's maiden name was Rachel Sheely. The marriage took place in 1848, in Hanover, and Rev. Jacob Seckler was the officiating clergyman.

Augustus Stahley, a rural mail carrier going out of Littlestown, Pa., lost all his mail trying to cross a bridge that had been rendered invisible by a swollen stream. The wagon was tilted over the side of the bridge and precipitated into the water. Stahley with difficulty reached the bank and rescued his team.

The indictment against Judge Grosscup, of the United States Circuit Court, Chicago, and four other directors of the Mattoon City Railway Company, charged with criminal negligence and manslaughter because of the head-on collision in which 18 persons were killed and 30 injured, in August last, has been quashed.

A man in Tampa, Fla., while lying in bed with a lighted cigarette in his mouth, on Sunday, fell asleep and the bedclothing became ignited. A fire was thus started, which destroyed property valued at $800,000. The buildings burned were mostly cigar factories and residences of men employed in them. A thousand people were made homeless by the fire and 4000 thrown out of employment.

Representatives of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company visited Reading, Pa., and settled with nearly all the families of the 20 Shriners of that city, who were killed in the wreck near Honda, Cal., last May. The total amount of money paid was about $80,000. One family claims $50,000, and in this case no agreement has been reached. Settlement was also made with all those who were injured.

Bishop Wallace W. Duncan, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, died in Spartanburg, South Carolina, on Monday, aged 69 years. He was a native of Boydton, Va. He became a member of the Virginia Conference in 1859, when only 20 years old, and filled stations in that Conference until 1875, except during the Civil War, when he was a chaplain in the Confederate army. He became a professor in Wofford College, South Carolina, in 1875, and was elected bishop in 1886.

Warren Hafer, the wealthiest man in Adams county, Pennsylvania, died at his home in Abbottstown. He was sitting in the dining room talking to his wife about the death of his daughter-in-law and little granddaughter, who were burned to death by the explosion of a coal oil lamp last week, when he suddenly fell from his chair. Mrs. Hafer was powerless to aid him and called for help, but he died before the arrival of medical assistance. He was 69 years old, weighed more than 200 pounds and was 6 feet 2 inches tall. He owned 35 farms.

The Governor of West Virginia sent a special message to the Legislature of that State embodying a communication from President Bush, of the Western Maryland Railroad, asking for the repeal of the Two-cent Fare law, passed in 1907, and called attention to the fact that the matter could not be taken up by this Legislature because not included in the call for the special session. The protest shows a falling off in passenger receipts of $26,277 on the West Virginia Division, in 1907, under the operation of the law.

On the same day last week attempts were made to assassinate the Shah of Persia and the President of the Argentine Republic. Two bombs were thrown at the former as he drove through the streets of Teheran. The Shah escaped unhurt, but three of his outriders were killed and 21 persons injured. The assassin escaped. A bomb was hurled at the President of the South American republic in front of his residence in Buenos Ayres, but did not explode. The would be assassin was arrested and is thought to be insane.

STRANGE HAPPENINGS.

A special from Bloomsburg, Pa., says that a valuable horse belonging to Harvey Vanderslice deliberately committed suicide by placing its head between two posts, falling on its knees and strangling itself to death.

Miss Mamie Shales, clerk in a Wilkesbarre, Pa., laundry, is in a critical condition as the result of poisoning from an indelible pencil, which she moistened with her tongue before marking clothing sent to the laundry.

Ten firemen risked their lives in a burning building at Pittsburg, Pa., looking for a baby they were told was in the house. One of them found what was supposed to be the child lying in a cradle. When it was carried out and found to be a large doll, the firemen said things.

Mrs. Theron C. Knapp, of Union, N. J., sued for divorce from her husband. At the trial he testified that when he bought some codfish and carried it home his wife accused him of extravagance and pulled his hair. This led to the quarrel which brought on the divorce proceedings.

A jury in the Circuit Court, St. Louis, Mo., decided that a woman who had been called "old cat" by the defendant had been damaged to the extent of $501. Albert S. Block, defendant, is a commission merchant, and Miss Annie Kerone, the plaintiff, is the bookkeeper for another commission firm. She claimed $20,000 damages. The jury gave her $1 actual and $500 punitive damages.

Miss Franc Kingsworth, an artists' model, was led blindfolded into a room filled with cadavers to be photographed for a picture to be entitled "Asleep with the Dead." She fainted when the bandages was removed and her eyes opened on the gruesome hulks of human forms around her. For hours afterward she was in a precarious condition. Miss Kingsworth had previously been photographed while waltzing with an articulated skeleton.

The War Department has received a petition from citizens of Oklahoma appealing for Federal interference with the Governor in an unusual case. Women of the Grand Army of the Republic auxiliaries presented an American flag to Governor Haskell, with request that it be placed in the legislative hall. The Governor declined to comply with the request unless an ex-Confederate organization joined in the presentation. There is no law authorizing Federal interference.

Fort Worth, Texas, claims the nerviest burglar on record. He entered the bedroom of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Nye, and laid down on the bed beside Mrs. Nye, as he felt under the pillow for money or jewels. Evidently he believed that should she awaken she would imagine that it was her husband. But it was Mr. Nye who awoke. He made a grab at the man, aroused his wife, who began to scream, and in the consequent confusion the robber escaped. He missed a pocketbook under the pillow, containing $300.

A Lone Star Shot.

George Voss proved himself an effective shot Thursday night and incidentally cut short a situation that might have resulted in a serious fire.

A live wire made itself manifest on the pole in front of his saloon at 420 Travis street, Houston, Texas, at 6.40 o'clock. Scintillating fire and flaming in close proximity to his awning, the wire threatened serious consequences. Voss took in the situation at a glance. He quickly ran into his place of business, took out a revolver and, quicker than it takes to tell it, there was the report of a pistol and the deadly wire snapped in two, cut by the true-aimed bullet. It was a clean, neat job and one of which the marksman may well feel proud.

Might Be With the Butters.

"I hope," said the new made widow, with a dry sob, "that poor Thomas won't be ranged with the goats instead of the sheep."

"Dear madam," replied the consoler, "your dear late partner was a truly good man."

"Yes, I know he was; but no matter where he was or what he was doing, Thomas would butt in."

Welcome to Him.

"Good morning, ma'am," began the temperance worker. "I'm collecting for the Inebriates' home and"—

"Why, me husband's out," replied Mrs. McGuire, "but if ye can find him anywhere's ye're welcome to him."—Everybody's.

The life journey may roughly be divided into three stages, each lasting about twenty-five years. Scientifically speaking, one is a "youth" until he is twenty-five; a "man" from twenty-five to fifty or fifty-five, after which "old age" begins. During the first period the rule is growth; during the second, equilibrium; during the third, decline. In the first repair exceeds destruction; in the second repair and destruction balance each other, while in the third destruction exceeds repair. From twenty-five to fifty-five a man should be at his best, but after that time he begins to lose ground, the machinery is running down, however slowly and imperceptly it may be, until around about seventy or seventy-five the "old age" is visible evento the dullest eey.

In the universe there is but one perpetual and unchanging fact, and that is—change. Nothing stands still. Everything is moving, either forward or backward—from death to life, from chaos to order, and back again to death and chaos to turn again in time, toward life and order. And so the everlasting drama goes on. Solar systems and sunflowers, worlds and worms, must alike return to the dust from which they came. It is the law of change, the endless march around the circle of birth and death, death and birth.

It was noticed recently at Gibraltar that numbers of Japanese sailors, many with breasts covered with war medals, when on shore leave carried with them water bottles. Presumably this was in order that the men should not run any risk of contracting waterborne disease by drinking on shore water which for all they know to the contrary may be impure. It is a little detail, but it shows how keenly alive the Japanese are to the practical application of preventive hygiene.

"Dead beat," we call the scurvy wight.
