MARYLAND NEWS.

A survey has been made for a new trolley line from Myersville to Wolfeville, a distance of six miles, through the northern end of the Middletown Valley, Frederick county.

An unidentified man fired a shot at E. G. Pryor, in the yard of the latter's residence, at Leitersburg, after shooting Mr. Pryor's shepherd dog, which was lying on the front porch.

A notice was posted on the shops of the Western Maryland Railroad in Hagerstown, on Monday, notifying the employees that work in all departments would be entirely suspended until April 1st.

Gen. Charles G. Burton, national commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., has named Capt. George W. Johnson, the "war-horse" of the Grand Army in Maryland, as assistant inspector general for the Department of Maryland.

A number of books from the private collection of the late Charles L. Marburg has been presented to the Grand Army Club, Baltimore, by his sister, Miss Emily Marburg, with a box full of interesting badges, collected by Mr. Marburg.

The High License bill for Baltimore City, drafted by City Solicitor Bruce, has been passed by the Legislature and is now the law. By its provisions licenses are to be $500 for the first year, $750 for the second year, $1000 for the third year, and thereafter to remain $1000.

Mr. Ambrose F. Fenton, of New York, and Mrs. Mary Virginia Taylor, of Washington, went to Rockville last Friday to get married. As it happened every minister in the town was away from home, and after waiting several hours, the couple was compelled to go back to the city in search of a clergyman.

The Maryland Steel Company, on Monday, resumed the operation of its big rail mills, and an additional blast furnace, giving employment to about 800 men, who have been idle. The mills have been closed since Christmas. It is believed that there will be sufficient work to keep the mills running steadily from now on.

Three boys, sons of Newton Young, of Hagerstown, walking along the Norfolk & Western Railroad track, outside the yard limits, saw the roof of a box car on the track. While two of them worked to remove the obstruction, the third ran down the track and flagged an approaching express train, which was stopped by the engineer in the nick of time.

A bad freight wreck on the Cumberland extension of the Western Maryland railroad on Tuesday piled up 14 loaded cars and threw others down an embankment. No one was seriously hurt. Wrecking crews were sent from Hagerstown and Cumberland. During the day passenger trains were run over the Baltimore and Ohio tracks, via Cherry Run.

Miss Jean Donaldson, a former Allegheny county young lady, now of Christchurch, New Zealand, has been awarded a gold medal by the Royal Humane Society. She was teaching in the Waltham Orphanage, Christchurch, when it was destroyed by fire, and by her heroism succeeded in getting out every child inmate of the institution. She was badly burned in her brave efforts.

An interesting event in the celebration of Maryland Day at Annapolis on Wednesday, was the placing of a tablet on the old cannon in the rotunda of the State House. The cannon was brought to Maryland from England by the first settlers, March 25th, 1634, and mounted on the walls of the fort of old St. Mary's. It was recovered from the bed of the St. Mary's river in 1827, and in 1840 presented to the State by Rev. Joseph Carberry.

Rev. S. M. Hartsock, D. D., senior member of the Baltimore Conference Methodist Episcopal Church, pastor of Centenary Church, Laurel, died on Thursday of last week at his country home, Har-Lew Hall, near Laurel. Funeral services were held at Eutaw Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Baltimore, of which Dr. Hartsock was at one time pastor, and were conducted by Rev. Dr. Frederick Heisse, presiding elder, on Saturday.

Orders have been issued by Major Fred C. Tarr, department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, announcing that the 32nd annual encampment of the Department of Maryland will be held at Wilson Post Hall, Baltimore, April 9 and 10 next. Capt. Robert O. Sunstrom, assistant adjutant general of the department, and a member of Dushane Post, No. 3, will be elected department commander to succeed Major Tarr.

Samuel T. Wagner, a farmer living near the Washington and Frederick county line, in Frederick county, had a narrow escape from death by the attack of a vicious bull, on Saturday. He was in his barnyard at the time. The bull tossed him six feet in the air. Before he could get up from the ground the bull again attacked him, and he would have been gored to death had not his brother Benjamin rushed to his assistance, armed with a pitch fork. The angry bull turned on the rescuer, who fled to the barn. In the meantime, the injured man crawled to a place of safety.

Chief Justice Harry M. Clabaugh, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, has issued an order permanently enjoining the American Federation of Labor from publishing the name of the Buck Stove and Range Company in the "unfair list" of the federation's monthly publication.

The heaviest snowfall of the winter prevailed throughout the Virginia Eastern Shore on Friday night. The heaviest March snow since 1864 visited Norfolk at the same time. The snow fall was very opportune and protected budding vegetation from the freezing cold. The snow reached as far south as Wilmington N. C.

Lieutenant General Stoessel, on Friday last, began to serve 10 years in prison for cowardice and treason in surrendering Port Arthur to the Japanese. He occupies a room in the fortress of Saints Peter and Paul, adjoining that in which Rear Admiral Nebagotoff is serving a like sentence for surrender to the Japanese at the battle of the Sea of Japan.

Durham W. Stevens, an American, diplomatic adviser to the Korean council of State, was dangerously wounded by a Korean, in San Francisco, on Monday. Stevens has been the friend of Japan in its dealings with Korea, and recently returned from the Orient. He was in company with Japanese Consul General Koike at the time he was shot. He is well known in Maryland, and a member of the Maryland Club.

Hon. William James Bryan, of Florida, the youngest member of the United States Senate, died of typhoid fever, on Sunday morning. His death followed in less than a week that of the oldest member of the Senate, Senator William Pinkney Whyte, of Maryland. Senator Bryan was 32 years old. His death is the eighth that has come to Senate within a year, beginning with that of Senator Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, in January 1907. The others were Senators John T. Morgan, and Edmund W. Pettus, of Alabama, Stephen R. Mallory, of Flordia, Asbury C. Latimer, of South Carolina, Redfield Proctor, of Vermont, and William Pinkney Whyte, of Maryland.

STRANGE HAPPENINGS.

Burglars have stolen the 500-pound bronze bust of Pope Clement VIII from the Villa Aldobrandini, at Frascati. Nothing else was taken but the bust which is said to be of almost priceless value.

Mrs. S. O. Burdette, of Kenton, Ohio, went to her hen coop to gather eggs, and was instantly killed by the discharge of a gun which her husband had set for thieves who had been stealing the chickens.

Dan Perry, plumber, had difficulty in locating the trouble in the big pipe organ of the First Presbyterian Church, Belvidere, Pa., but finally found a large dead eel in one of the water motor pipes.

At Utica, Nebraska, Rev. F. A. Miller, evangelist from Lincoln, criticised the members of a women's church society. Later, while on his way to the railway station he was attacked by about twenty men and seriously injured.

Dr. T. H. Welch, of Winsted, Conn., is said to be able to predict changes in the weather 24 hours in advance, by bumps that arise on his head. One bump means rain, two snow and three a windstorm. The bumps are nearly as large as doorknobs, the doctor says. He thinks that an attack of rheumatism, which he had some time ago, makes his head sensitive to atmospheric changes.

"If you'll promise to take a look at yourself in a mirror, I'll let you go," said Justice Grannan, of Baltimore, to Frank Chitek. Chitek was arrested for being drunk. As he stood before the Justice, he was a beauty. His nose was cut, both eyes blackened and his face crossed with many scars. "Take that mirror and after a good look at yourself, if the glass is not broken, swear off drinking the kind of liquor that you filled up on last night. Discharged," said Justice Grannan.

While sorting mail from a foreign steamer, in New York, on Saturday, one of the clerks picked up a letter addressed:

Your Excellency,
Sir Abraham Lincoln,
Fifth Avenue,
New York City, U. S. A.

It was postmarked, February 2nd, but the mailing point was illegible. The letter will be held in the inquiry department for the usual time, and will then be forwarded to the Dead Letter Office.

Fifteen members of the crew of the British steamship Kiora, loading dynamite at Thompson's Point, N. J., for the construction department of the Panama Canal, deserted. They went to the British Consul at Philadelphia and declared that the ship is a floating mine and that death to all on board will be the result of any accident at sea. The Consul tried to persuade them to return to their duties, but without avail. Fifteen others were secured, willing to take the risk, and the Kiora started on her journey to Colon.

Several months ago, a new parrot was added to the aviary of Central Park, New York. For a long time, the bird posed as deaf and dumb. He seemed very stupid, and some of the younger birds teased him constantly, stealing his food and inflicting other indignities. Last Sunday the parrot, whose name is Klincher, suddenly opened up on his tormentors: "Sacre," "Caramba," "Donner und Blitzen" and on with his profanity through six languages. Investigation developed the fact that the bird has traveled over the world with a sea captain.

The press despatches of Monday, from Jacksonville, N. J., tell an interesting story of sundry complications in the religious services at the Dutch Reformed Church, in that town, on Sunday.

When Janitor Johnson got to the Dutch Reformed Church to make a fire in the boxwood stove he found 16 dogs sitting calmly in a circle on the low front porch of the church.

In the centre of the circle was a very small black and white animal with a bushy tail. It, too, seemed calm. On the appearance of the janitor the dogs rose to bark at the little animal, but they went no closer to him. He rose gracefully, swirling his bushy tail in the air. Whereupon Janitor Jones went home to lay aside his Sunday clothes.

There are 50 pupils in the Sunday school, counting Miss Tompkins' Bible class for young men. They were all out in front of the church at 9 o'clock. But there was no way to get past the small black and white animal. It was proposed that he be shot, but there was danger of killing some of the guardian dogs. Moreover, the preacher, Rev. Charles Hengst, would allow no firearms to be used near the church on the Sabbath.

As the morning wore on the older folk came out to hear the first sermon of the day. They added themselves to the observation party already in front of the church. Finally is was decided to leave the animal in complete possession of the church. Mr. Hengst delivered his sermon on "The Sins of the Fathers" in a private house. There wasn't any Sunday-school.

From time to time the little animal rose from his calm, sitting posture on the porch to swing his tail in the air, appearing somewhat bored, but impelled to take some little exercise for the sake of his health. The boys of this place stayed far away from the porch. But two city chaps, with their country girls, went closer to look. They hesitate to return to town.

Road That Swallowed Itself.

A portion of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway at the 151st mile, or just thirty-seven miles above New Liskeard, has twice swallowed itself, so to speak, and the Railway Commissioners are now waiting to hear what its next preformance will be. On the first occasion the line, which at the portion referred to was a fill in of a ravine, suddenly sank to the depth of ten feet. A big gang of men was put to work refilling the vacancy. They had it levelled to the rest of the grade of the line, and were walking away satisfied that it would last, when the filling sank again, this time to a depth of at least fifteen feet. The men who are constructing the line are now earnestly engaged in another attempt to fill in the gap.

"I presume you carry a memento of some sort in that locket of yours?"

"Precisely! It is a lock of my husband's hair."

"But your husband is still alive."

"Yes; but his hair is all gone."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Odd Doing of Earthworms.

Ever since Darwin wrote his remarkable book on earthworms the general public has taken an interest in those lowly creatures. Everybody has observed thousands of them on the cement walks during and after rain; but the true cause of these remarkable wanderings is not often written about. The fact is that earthworms can move about only when the ground and the grass are wet. The truth of this is easily shown by placing an earthworm on some dry sand, when the dry grains will stick to its slimy skin and makes it helpless.

All living creatures are endowed with the instinct to move and spread over the earth. Human beings, higher animals, and birds prefer to move about in fair weather. To the earthworm and other lowly creatures, like frogs, salamanders, slugs, and land snails, rainy days are the only days for traveling. When the sun comes out and dries the roads and the meadows they withdraw into their hiding places. As earthworms cannot see clearly, they crawl about in an aimless sort of way. If they happen to get on a board or cement walk, when the sky clears they soon die shriveled up.

When a dry season or winter approaches, the earthworms burrow deeper in the ground. At the depth varying from about six inches to two feet each worm coils up into a little ball. By aid of secreted slime it makes a case of dirt round itself, and in this state it remains dormant, until abundant rains or the spring thaw call it back to a more active life.

With Allowance.

There is an editor in a little New York town who has a well developed streak of gentle humor and fondness for gardening. Not long ago his man of all work left him, and the editor advertised for some one to fill his place. Among the applicants for the position was a man who seemed to know his business thoroughly, but who failed to produce references as to character when requested. Moreover, his eyes were somewhat shifty.

"You say you have no references?" the editor asked.

"No, sir, I have not," the man replied in a tone of humble pride; "but I think, sir, that you will find honesty printed on my face."

The owner smiled a little. "Well—er—perhaps," he admitted; "that is, allowing for typographical errors."

Her Way of Doing It.

A well-known clubman of Boston was married during the early part of the winter to a charming college girl, who for many accomplishments, is proudest of her cooking.

Her husband, returning late one afternoon to his home, was surprised to find his wife "all tired out."

"You look dreadfully fatigued, little one," said he in a sympathetic tone.

"I am," was her reply. "You see, dear, I heard that you liked broiled rabbit. So I meant to surprise you with one for dinner; but I've been hard at work on the rabbit all day, and I haven't got it more than half picked."
