in the cars, but that no one told her when it was time to change cars so that she was near being left.

Please thank Pully for fixing the bonnet and you also dear Mother for your share of the trimming it looks very nicely. Who sent the doll and for whom was it intended Mary laid claim to it and then tried which was the strongest, it or the little tumbler and broke one arm so the glue pot will be in requisition. Who knit the little socks? I cannot say that I am surprised to hear that you can not come so soon as we expected for I had not allowed myself to think much of it, but you know we want you whenever you can come I am most truly sorry to hear of little Chester's continued illness will they try a wet nurse? I told Aunt Sally on Sunday about Pully (we were the first at Church) she was much surprised, says of course she will go if she is wanted. I intended to have gone there yesterday to stay until this morning but was prevented by the rain. I had a talk with Henry this morning, or rather he had with me, I asked if he knew of any one who would like to buy the fresh cows he asked if we wanted to sell, I replied there was no use in keeping them unless they could be milked: which of course led to one of Henry's talks about what he did what he had to do &c and that he had had no peace since he got Richards letter and could have none now, that if we wanted him to go he was willing to do so at any time, And a great deal more which I can not write about privileges &c but nothing like an offer to do it. Whether he will think sufficient ground for seeking another situation
