with amazement at his power to blind and utter it and yet felt so much regret at it draw to a close that I could not but feel much gladly sit forever to listen to a continuance of the same train of reasoning and the same beauty of language — Though this Exhaustiest I write this Evening because I shall be occupied on the Morrow and unable to write then. I am truly glad to learn that you will have a tri weekly Mail next week and shall be sure to avail myself of it. Even though I should have no letter to communicate yet I have this Evening. I took tea at Mrs Buckley's found Mr. Peal & Effingham there. They are all wonderfully well I never saw Mrs Buckley better - Mr. Peal had been at St Andrews in the morning & had heard an Excellent Sermon & this Evening went to Dr Boardman's & Effa to write to his Sisters. They all desire much love to you, Mary, & the girls - Mr & Mrs Charles Yarnall leave tomorrow for Walbrook & I find Sally Chester will also go to Baltimore in the same train, with Mrs Henry Reed. I shall however send this by mail as it may reach you more promptly than by her. I am sure you will enjoy having Cousin Emily with you & will detain her as long as you can. I will endeavour to attend to your little messages about the Recorder & the Channings in a day or two but am just

I can truly say I have an absolute disgust at every thing I have attempted even my letters. I shall stop now and take my rest before I get into a humor to destroy this, as I can ere Lionte another a time for tomorrows mail. Charles gave me yesterday a letter for you which he says he has carried in his pocket a month I directed it and send it by this mail as it was in a stamped envelope. Monday. I have heard nothing more from the Misses Morris. Charlotte you know is absent in Maryland; Sally is also away at Mr Cooks and Miss Amelia says nothing since the received my note. The Parkers & Mr Cushman comfort the family. I shall say nothing to them till I hear further from them. and abide quietly in my lot Calmly waiting the development of the
