Election—Tuesday, November 3rd, 1908.

It is not hazarding an improbable prediction to say that if every Democrat in the United States who dissents from Mr. Bryan's views in relation to the government ownership of railroads, the taxation of national banks to protect individual depositors, the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, the referendum and kindred propositions, should vote against him, he would be defeated by a majority more overwhelming than that against Judge Parker four years ago. And it would be well for the country if that should be the result of the pending election.

The New York Herald, with its usual enterprise, has made a careful canvass of the State of New York, from which it has reached the conclusion that Taft will carry it by 50,000. At the same time the Herald's information points to the defeat of Governor Hughes, unless there shall be a decided turn in his favor before the election. This his friends are hoping for. He has been giving the force of his wonderful arguments in favor of the election of Taft to people outside of New York, and has done splendid work for the national ticket. He will devote the next month to his own canvass in New York and, with his wonderful personality and persuasive arguments, may change the drift against him. He is persona non grata to the Republican machine of New York, but the politicians of that ilk should know that his defeat through their supineness, or worse, will react against them in a fashion that will bode them no good in the future.

Would Russianize America.

Hon. Oscar S. Straus, Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor, in a speech delivered in Baltimore last Saturday night, scored a strong point against Bryanism by charging that the goverment ownership of railroads, which Mr. Bryan alleges is the only solution of the railroad situation, would Russianize the country. Perhaps it is putting it too strong to say that it would reduce the people of this country to a level with the masses of Russia, but it would create a mighty host of government employees to tyranize over ordinary citizens. A standing army of half a million men would scarcely be a greater menace to popular liberty. The Russian government owns the railroads of that country and the oppressions under which the people suffer, as a consequence, are intolerable. Mr. Bryan was there and could not have closed his eyes to the prevalent condition of things in that ill-governed land, yet he came home to announce as one of his first utterances after landing at New York, that this government should own the railroads. It is safe to say that the people of the United States are not prepared to accept this, or any other, imitation of the autocratic government of the Czar.

Against Gold Standard Forever.

Thus spoke Wm. J. Bryan in an address delivered by him at Asheville, N. C., September 16, 1896, an extract from which was reproduced in the Baltimore Sund of Tuesday last. The extract in full is as follows:

Against the maintenance of the gold standard, for one year or forever, the Democratic party has arrayed itself. We are opposed to a gold standard. * * * We have commenced a war of extermination against it—a war that will not cease while there is any party, or any considerable number of men, attempting to fasten this foreign yoke upon an independent people. I seek no votes under false pretenses. I want no one to vote for me under a misunderstanding. If there is anyone who believes that the gold standard is a good thing or that it must be maintained, I warn him not to cast his vote for me, because I promise him that it will not be maintained in this country longer than I am able to get rid of it.

According to Mr. Bryan at that time no change in conditions could ever change his unalterable determination to oppose the maintenance of the gold standard "for one year or forever," and he then pledged himself to get rid of it whenever he might be able to do so. He was so confident in his own judgment of the iniquity of the gold standard that he made no reservation of his intention to fight it to destruction. He has not admitted and will not admit today that his judgment in 1896 was at fault, or that his purpose to destroy the gold standard has changed. Like other of his chimerical ideas he holds it in abeyance until such time as he can, with executive authority, endeavor to force upon the country the parity of silver and gold at the ratio of 16 to 1, badly as that theory has been discredited by the experience of the last dozen years.

Is not this conclusion entirely logical in view of Mr. Bryan's dogmatic utterance at Asheville? and is not this another strong evidence of the danger to be apprehended from placing a man of this visionary character in the chief executive office of the nation?

DIED.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our mother, Catharine A. Williams, who departed this life October 7th, 1901, seven years ago.

We miss thee from our home dear mother,
We miss thee from your place,
A shadow o'er our life is cast,
We miss the sunshine of thy face.

We miss thy kind and willing hand
Thy fond and earnest care,
Our home is sad without thee,
We miss thee everywhere.

O mother, you are not forgotten,
Nor ever will you be,
For so long as life, or memory last
We will remember thee.

By her daughter, Mrs. Sarah J. Fossett.

Through the pearly gates of Heaven
Passed the one we Loved so dear;
God thought best to take her from us
Though it made our home so drear.

Grandmother, dear, we miss you
Since to Heaven you have gone,
We mourn your loss dear grandmother
And will try and meet you there.

By her granddaughter, Mrs. H. W. Little.
