which made the change of motion, when we got off, very refreshing. After passing the Susquehanna, I believe we both took some little naps, I know I had a nice rest on the Dr's shoulder, I only hope it did not add to his fatigue. When we reached Phila^da, we found dear Gally waiting for us, and, soon after, Annie and Israel welcomed us, was it not kind in them to come and meet us at that late hour in the evening? I behaved very selfishly, however, for I almost insisted upon Cousin Caspar's coming home with me, and thought afterwards, in consideration for my own gratification, I had deprived them of the pleasure of having him and the Dr himself of being with them. Gally said, Annie Perot had seemed much more comfortable until last evening, when she suffered from a sick spell. Hannah was very much improved in health by her trip to Muncy, which I was very glad to hear. Annie Morris said her Mother was well, and all of them, there was only time for a moments conversation, as Dr Wilmer had just met us, and kindly offered to take us up in his carriage, which he had bought for his own family, but they had not arrived. Under this polite attention, we soon reached 1929, where we were favoured to find all well, George much stronger, though he had taken a little cold and has some cough, but he
