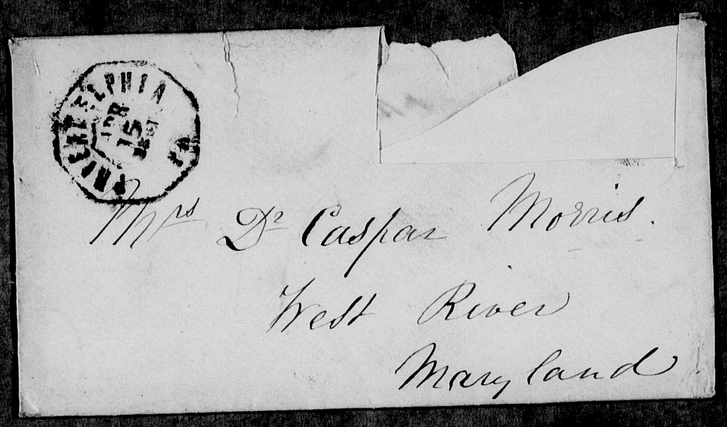
SIDE TWO



Mrs Dr Caspar Morris.
West River
Maryland

Mary from much suffering, and giving her such a dear little boy and also in restoring Hannah, after the anxiety felt about her during some days. Cousin Caspar reported Hannah quite comfortable last night, of course, you will hear from him more particularly about them all. I wrote to the Dr by yesterday's mail, not supposing he would return before next week, and, in it, mentioned the increased illness of Johnny Hallow but this morning was quite shocked to hear of his death, tho' it is a blessed release to the dear child. E Reed was here this morning, and said Mrs Hallow feels it most acutely, more even than her loss last Spring. Alice and I are having a pleasant, quiet time together, reading, sewing and above all, talking. I think dear Cousin Caspar looks better for his sojourn with you, and you may be sure I was glad. He said he would come and dine with us to-morrow. I have missed you all on Sunday it seemed as I felt last without you. The Dr told me, dear Cousin Anne that you had sprained your knee, but that it was better, I hope soon to learn that it is quite well.
