ladies intend leaving earlier than the 15th of June, I believe about the 9th, so that we may look for you sooner than you expected, if you can come, conveniently. The Dr will tell you also, of the proposal Miss M. made him to-day, about renting the house for another year from the first of June, but all our arrangements we will talk over when we meet, it is very delightful to me to think of seeing you and a great satisfaction, also, with respect to consulting about the best plans for the future, for tho' every thing is so uncertain from the state of the country, yet it seems to me from Miss Morris's proposal that some decision must be come to with respect to them.

Friday morning. I had written last evening as far as the middle of the last page, when Cousin Caspar Mott kindly called to see me having been to Mrs Fallon's whose little boy had a cold. The Dr found me writing and as I was tired with our expedition to the Hospital in the afternoon he advised me to go to sleep and leave writing until morning, so I obeyed him, of course, and now scribble before breakfast. Gally sends his love, but will write himself instead of sending any message. Breakfast appears, and as we shall soon meet, I hope I will say good-bye, with best love to all, Mr Galloway Cheston & Mrs C. included, and the heartfelt wishes for your happiness from your affectionate

Cousin. Emily H.
