For Mrs Morris.

I have had a long journey and as there now appears a prospect of a short season of warm weather my kind friends insist upon my remaining to rest awhile previous to settling in the city — But I want to say to you dear Ann, that I will do all in my power to make Galloway comfortable in his new quarters. Annie has told me of your arrangements for him, and I assure you, I will try to supply a mother's place to him. I know it can only be a poor attempt to fill such a place, yet I will do my utmost. Let me be a sister to you dear Ann, and call upon me freely — I hope you will still be in Phila^a when I return, I want very much to see both the Doctor & you, do please take care of yourself and do not overexert yourself — our dear little Effingham is lovely — and I was no little gratified to find he remembered me after our long separation, he put his arms around my neck and gave me one of his "love squeezes", calling me "Mr Mamma" — How these little beings twine themselves around our hearts. — Sister Mary requests me to give her love to you — and accept a heartful for you & your dear husband, from your sincerely attached
