CHRISTMAS.

To-night is the "night before Christmas, when all through the house not a creature will be stirring, not even a mouse," To-morrow will be celebrated the greatest festival of the year. May we have peace on earth and good will toward all men.

Christmas used to be celebrated by eating, drinking and making merry, but in recent years it has come to be celebrated as a church festival and a general home coming occasion. The churches will have early and late services and a religious atmosphere will pervade the day.

When the early services are over the families will have their reunions, and then will be realized how true is the old, old song of John Howard Payne,

Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam,
Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home.

It is right and proper to make Christmas a home coming season. The home is the unit of our civilization and should be guarded and protected from all assaults of the Devil and his angels. Christ founded the home and gave it his blessings. We may have many so called friends, but our true friends are in "our" homes. Right or wrong they are always ready to defend us from attack and to encourage us in our efforts.

Let us then gather around our altars and firesides and celebrate the day befitting its dignity and importance. But at the same time let us not forget our less fortunate friends and neighbors. They may have had misfortunes in the family circle or business reverses which have thrown a cloud of sorrow over their homes. It is then they need your symyathy, encouragement and counsel. Hope, faith and charity, these three, but the greatest of these is charity.

This season above all other seasons is the one when man should endeavor to live the life Christ intended him to live. Be not proud of the possession of wealth, social standing or intellect.

Oh, why should the spirit of mortal be proud?
Like a swift-fleeting meteor, a fast-flying cloud.
A flash of the lightning, a break of the wave,
He passes from life to rest in the grave.

A few days ago Major Gonter, of St. Louis, stated that he and Mark Twain (Samuel Clemens) had begun a game of euchre in the year of 1865 and that it lasted four years. He has issued an invitation to Mr. Twain to join him at dinner on Christmas and after dinner to take up the game they did not finish. When the invitation was issued Mr. Twain was on the ocean bound from Bermuda to New York. On Tuesday he was interviewed at New York and when told of Major Gonter's desires, remarked: "That was a poker game in which Major Gonter got all I had; now he comes back at me and wants all I have left. He is mistaken in his dates. It seems to me I was in jail about the time he has reference to."

Speaking of himself he said: "There is no new work for me in this world and in this life. I am practically through with work in this life and the world."

'Tis sad indeed to hear the latter from Mr. Clemens. He has made more people forget their troubles than any other man, living or dead. The ruling spirit, however, is still strong as will be seen from his replies to the interview on the subject of the euchre game. His jokes and writings will be listened to and read by coming generations of men and women. "Tom Sawyer," "Huckleberry Finn," "Roughing It," "Innocents Abroad," "Sketches," "A Tramp Abroad," and his numerous other writings, will not soon be forgotten. May he enjoy his declining years in peace.

Mr. Woolley, sometime since a candidate for President on the Prohibition ticket, has left the party declaring that it was run by the Democrats and Republicans, and that the only real sure enough temperance people are the local-option ones.

Mr. Chafin, the recent candidate of the Prohibition party, has just declared that the local option people are in league with the whiskey people.

So there you are.

Governor Hadley of Missouri endeavored to have his State given a nick name other than "Show Me," but has made a dismal failure of it. He was literally overwhelmed with letters protesting against a change. It evidently pleases the Missourians to be known as "Doubting Thomases,"

The ever recurring question, "What is whiskey?" can probably be answered by some fellow a day or so after.

Peary—Cook and Ballinger—Pinchot Controversies on hand, and to-morrow is Christmas. Lets forget them.

Helen Keller of Chicago, born deaf, dumb and blind, has won university honors in her class for a high decree of scholorship.

We know some young men and women who ought to be ashamed of their efforts.

Mr. J. F. Thomas, clerk of the Adams county, Pennsylvania Courts, appointed his wife his chief deputy.

If one of our officers should do the same some of our politicians would think he was a fit subject for a lunatic asylum.

Ex-Governor Frank Brown, collector of taxes for Baltimore, is from Carroll County and the City Council just had to give him that one per cent. If you don't believe Carroll County politicians, and some others, get what is coming to them, look around and see.

A man who has been in a state of coma for several days has just been revived by the sight of a big hat, worn by a lady visitor to the hospital.

Perhaps he had paid for one and it was the first time he had seen it.

When a child we used to hear a song something like this:

"Oh, won't the pork be high,
When the pigs begin to fly,
But we see no reason why,
They never should have a try;
Much queerer things will come to pass,
When the pigs begin to fly.

They are flying all right. So are lots of other things, "persons" and prices.

Green street bridge stands in a busy business section of our city and the action of the Mayor and Common Council, in allowing it to remain in its present condition is past all understanding. The business men of that section are being injured daily by the seemingly wonton carelessness of the authorities. When some one's horses knock down the flimsy guard and fall through to the railroad tracks below, then there will be a "howl."

The Philadelphia Press of December 16, says:

"The election of Miss Haesler, professor of history in the Girls' High School, as a member of the Teachers' Pension Fund Board, is a wise recognition of the large number of woman interested in these pensions. Woman do not receive sufficient recognition in our public school systems, though this is changing for the better. They are fitted to be principals, particularly of girls' schools, their pay should be better and promotion should carry them farther."

We heartily concur in the sentiment expressed in the latter part of the above editorial and sincerely hope the day will soon dawn when woman's intelligence and rights will be recognized in school matters.

We never have, nor never will, object to a proper system of book keeping being adopted by the Mayor and Common Council of this city, but we do most earnestly object to paying outside people an extravagant price to install it. We said it was an insult to the intelligence of our book keepers and business men to employ an Auditing Company, and we say so now. There are plenty of people in our little city who could have suggested another method of book keeping—if the present one does not suit—and the cost would have been nominal.

We do not intend to discuss the question of who made the floating debts because it would avail nothing at this time. We owe them, so let us adopt a method of payment. We think, however, that it ill becomes The Democratic Advocate to attribute all our present ills to bad book keeping on the part of former Mayors and Common Councils. From the editorial in last's week's issue of that paper one is almost persuaded that some one connected with its editorial department advised the employment of the auditing company. If so, his defense of it is weak indeed.
