1859 Casper Morris Wyoming

SIDE TWO

as soon as he comes under my care again I to try the relations of Indian and Lady Genie. Dr. Fairbold says, when I left him a fortnight since, that there were no cavities in my brother's lungs. Don't you think it would be justifiable in resorting to the proposed treatment.

I send you the enclosed article on Raw Meat as a remedy to see if you will approve of its publication. It is based on your cases. If you think it had better not send it to the Cheltenham Journal, please not to hesitate to say so. Please moreover criticize and correct it, as you would an essay from the pen of one of your own sons.
Recollect I am your youngest son in Medicine, and whatever your criticism may be, I know the kind spirit that will prompt it, and I will know how to take it.
If you think the article more fit for the Fire than the Journal, please commit it to that element, and when I write again, I will try and do better. Please excuse my troubling you so much, Dr Morris and believe me

Yours most truly and respectfully,
F R Leverett.

P.S. In case it will do to publish, do send it to Beaufort.

The little German boy of which I spoke in the article was in addition to his other evils scrofulous, you may recollect Dr Smith's treatment for Scabies was not overturned at Bangor. Ought it to? He did not know Scabies [illegible]
