PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

In our issues of March 11th and 18th we commented on the crowded conditions existing in some of the lower grades of the public schools of this county and referred especially to the Westminster High School. Our sole object was to direct the attention of the taxpayers and parents to the existing conditions, and, if possible, to induce those in authority to come to the aid of the teachers in charge. We intended no reflections whatever upon the teachers because under the present system they need sympathy and not adverse criticism.

We said the system was laid down by the State Board of Education; that the teachers were compelled to work under it and that the teachers could not properly prepare the pupils for the advancing grades. We stick to the latter statement.

In this issue we publish, at the request of the principal of the High School, two letters written in defense of an imaginary attack upon its teachers. The first one is in reply to our editorial of the 11th, and certainly makes no issue between this paper and the principal. We said the lower grades were overcrowded and he frankly admits it; but in defense of a supposed attack on the teachers hastens to deny that the scholars were not "properly" prepared for entrance to a higher grade. The latter statement is self laudatory—blowing your own horn as it were. As to some of the graduates being deficient in reading, writing and arithmetic we will allow those who have come in contact with them to be the judges in the matter.

The letter states that the State Board of Education has mapped out a course of study for the schools of the State. We said the same thing. It arranges the whole system and the pupils and teachers must work under it. We have no fault to find with it, provided the necessary teachers are provided for the lower grades.

We agree that "the bright boys and girls who are able to absorb the work of the higher grades but whose parents are not able to send them to a college, should not be deprived of an opportunity to receive a high school education." We will go further and say that we think the State should establish schools in each county that will give the class of boys referred to an education equal to one obtainable in a college. The latter proposition would, however, amount to nothing if the pupils are not given the proper training and sufficient teachers in the primary and intermediate grades.

We reiterate our statement contained in the editorial of the 18th, that "the conditions existing in the school, as related by the scholar, should not surprise any one when we stop to think what the teacher has to contend with." Our object in making the statement was to show that under the crowded conditions many small disorders could happen without the teacher knowing anything about it. It was not made to injure the teacher but rather to let the public see that help was needed. The teachers may say what they please—and, by the way, we all appreciate the position they are in and what prompted them to rush into print—but some of us who have had the privilege of attending school know very well that many, many things happen in a school room of which the teacher is ignorant. We expected a denial because to admit it would be jeopardizing their positions. Many boys, who are devilish in school, turn out to be the best men in their communities.

When the principal of the High School, for whom, by the way, the editor of this paper has the highest personal regard, both as a man and teacher, he being, in our opinion, one of the best teachers in the State, says there is no politics in the school system of Maryland he makes a statement about a matter of which he is absolutely ignorant. He is not in a position to know; but some other people are. It is not the purpose of this paper to drag the schools into politics but rather to pull them out. The Democratic party is in absolute control of the schools and it will be held accountable for their condition. The teachers have not been mixed up in politics by either party and never will be. If we have been able to direct the attention of the public to the over crowded conditions of the lower grades and the people will force a reformation by supplying more teachers for them, then we have accomplished our present aim. If in doing so we have made anybody mad we are very sorry for them. Reforms must come even if some people do get angry. We are not conscious of any intended injury to a teacher in the county. We are doing our very best—although it may seem very weak to some people—to help them; and we hope that in the future they will better understand our position. We shall, in the future, have some more to say about the schools which may be of interest to a large class of taxpayers.

State Tax Rate Will Go Higher.

Despite the efforts of Governor Crothers, Comptroller Hering, Treasurer Vandiver and of the members of the Senate Finance and of the House Ways and Means committees to keep the tax rate down, there is every prospect that their efforts will be in vain. It looks as though the rate will be at least 21 cents on the $100, an increase of five cents. It may be even higher. The rate cannot be accurately determined until final action is taken on the several pending bond bills. They are $1,000,000 for the purchase of bridges in connection with the state road improvement; $600,000 for a colored insane asylum and for additional buildings at Springfield for the accommodation of indigent insane; $100,000 for further equipments at Sabillasville and $400,000 for a new state normal school.

All the revenue to be derived from 16 cents, the present rate, will be devoted to public school purposes. Out of this fund will come teachers' pensions and the money to meet the expense of the commercial course in the academies and high schools. Two years ago the public school rate was 14 cents. The deficiency was made up out of the general funds in the treasury.

Of the increase of five cents in the rate three or three and one-half cents will be for public roads. One cent will be for a new insane asylum and equipment at Springfield. One-half a cent will be for other bond issues, to provide interest payments and sinking funds.

Reports from Cambrdge, Md., says: All farmers report fruit safe up to this time. The peach bud has not developed far enough to be affected by the freezing and it will require several warm days before it will open so that frost can injure it. The strawberry plant is only beginning its growth, which means a late blossom is apt to fruit.

NO CHANCE TO VOTE ON THE QUESTION OF LICENSE.

Local option received another death blow in the House on Monday night when a bill, introduced by Mr. Snader, of this county, providing for a vote on license or no license in the wet counties, Baltimore being exempted, was laid on the table and riveted by a later vote to reconsider and tabled.

Mr. Benson, who made the motion, first made the point of order that the bill was outlawed because the House had defeated a similar bill and had placed it beyond the possibility of resurrection by the usual reconsideration and tabling process. The Speaker decided that the point was not well taken. Mr. Benson then made his motion to table. There was a loud chorus of ayes. Before there could be a roll call the Speaker had decided that the motion to table had carried.

In explaining his bill Mr. Snader read the following statement:

"This bill, which I have just introduced is the original local option bill, exempting Baltimore city and the following counties: Baltimore, Allegany, Anne Arundel, Charles, Queen Annes, St. Marys and Washington. These seven are the counties from which a majority of the delegates voted against the statewide bill. The vote in the 16 counties to which this bill will apply was 44 to 5 in favor of the bill and at least one of the five will support this one.

"The gentlemen from Baltimore county and Baltimore city who opposed the statewide local option bill stated that they will vote to give local option to every county which wants it. The delegates and the people of Carroll county want this measure. I was elected to this House on that issue and the bill I have introduced simply aims to give this measure to Carroll and the other counties whose delegates voted for it, and if a majority of the delegates from any one of the 16 counties included in the bill ask on the floor of this House to be exempted from its operations I will consent to have the measure so amended. Therefore in behalf of the people of the counties who want this legislation and the members of this House who voted for it, I appeal to the members from Baltimore city and those counties which are exempted from its provisions for votes sufficient to pass it."

Mr. Benson made the point of order that the subject matter of this bill having already been considered and rejected by the House in the manner prescribed in rule 26 it could not again be taken up at the present session.

The speaker promptly overruled the point of order saying that he did not think the rule applied in this case.

Mr. Benson then moved to lay the bill on the table, which was carried, and the bill was killed.
