AMERICAN SENTINEL.

WESTMINSTER, - MARYLAND.

JOS. D. BROOKS, Editor.

Entered at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

FRIDAY, APRIL 8, 1910.

Who wants to be Mayor? Don't all speak at once.

The next Mayor must be assessed for at least $1000 in either real or personal property and councilmen for $500.

The donkey is symbolical of the Democratic party and in the passage of the various Digges measures the Maryland breed lived up to its reputation.

Between the peonage laws of some of the Southern states and the disfranchising laws passed by our legislature the colored population is having a rather strenuous time.

It is a downright shame. Just as the Democrats were enjoying a pipe dream about carrying the next House of Representatives the Democrats of Maryland made fools of themselves and spoiled it. Get some more dope.

To show that they have confidence in their position in the attempt to defy the constitution of the United States we hope Messrs. Digges, Marbury and Machen will get themselves appointed as Democratic Registers of Voters in their respective voting precincts. If any of the Democratic Registers are to be sent to the penitentiary, as predicted by Major Venerable of Baltimore, we think the originators of the infamous legislation should be among them. It certainly will be cowardly to ask some other fellows to stand up and take the dose.

The legislature passed a bill and the Governor has signed it, providing for the building of a highway from Baltimore to Annapolis. The bill appropriates $300,000 out of the additional $1,000,000 loan for roads. This highway will run through a part of the State where land is almost worthless and consequently contributes very little taxes. This is another illustration of how Southern Maryland gets the benefit of the taxes paid by the Western and Northern-Central counties of the State.

The State is now building a road from Baltimore to Washington which runs through the poorest land in the whole State.

How long are the people of this section going to stand for that kind of treatment from the Democratic party?

Farmers Should Get Together.

When you come to think of it farmers need to get together often to widen out their ruts, to tone down the monotony and isolation too often inherent in farm life, and to keep pace with the other callings of this progressive century. There is much talk current just now in the papers about the wholesale flitting of young men and maidens from the farm to the city in quest of change, company and success. A very good cure for this is to let up a little on farm drudgery, and mix more of sociability, recreation and food for the mind, and those who know from experience are free to say that a well conducted grange fills the bill of this reform first rate. Try it and note the effect.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

It is with no feeling of impatience or lack of appreciation that one points out defects in the schools. The school, like the church or state, is a vast and social institution. It cannot be democratized in a day or a generation. And everywhere there are signs of the coming change: teachers, parents and children are all more interested, more bent on making the school fill the needs of the people. The interest in industrial education is everywhere growing; the vocation school adds its weight to the impetus toward natural and wholesome training; there is a growing tendency to make the most of the live spots in the children. The present system in Maryland is entirely too rigid; it lacks elasticity. Children are not all alike and they do not all want exactly the same training. The farmers of this county have year after year petitioned for something to be done in the way of educating their children in the pursuits of farming, but have persistently been refused. The present system educates the boys away from the farm instead of towards it. Is it fair to deny the request of the farmers?

The present system leads a boy or girl towards commercial life and as soon as a boy has reached a certain grade he turns his back on the plow and seeks employment in some city to become a clerk or what not. If the girl is allowed to remain in the school until she reaches the higher grades she too turns her back on household duties and seeks employment as a stenographer or clerk. Both of them, the boy and the girl, soon become aristocrats in ideas and have no use for the old notions, ways and farm of father and mother.

What right has the merchant, the manufacturer or the professional gentleman to insist that the farmer shall contribute his share of the taxes for public school purposes in order that they may be furnished with competent help, without, at the same time, giving the farmer something for his money?

We have thousands of acres of land that need intense farming but cannot get properly instructed help to assist in or superintend the work. The young men are being educated toward the cities and their heads are filled with all sorts of nonsense about how much easier it is to make a living in them. The young men who could not grasp the ideas, as taught by the system, are left behind to get along the best way they can. They have had no opportunity to learn anything about a calling for which they are fitted. Had the latter been given an opportunity to study farming and the subjects relating thereto they would have become very useful in the community.

Every person informed on the subject knows very well that the prevailing high prices of farm products have been brought about by the very system that educates our boys from the farms to the cities. Every person who migrates from the farm ceases to be a producer and becomes a consumer, and the army of the latter is increasing everyday. Every profession, except perhaps the ministry, is over crowded, and no one with a small capital has a ghost of a chance to become an independent manufacturer. Every young man entering the city simply becomes a servant for some large corporation that will get rid of him as soon as he becomes old. Then why do the young men go to the cities? Because the system now in vogue in Maryland educates them toward them. The men in charge of our schools look down upon farming because their education was along about the same line as our children are now getting. They can't help it any more than our boys can help what they are doing. There is an old saying among the farmers "that if the mother trots and the father trots you must not expect the colt to pace." If our boys are being educated to become everything but farmers we must not expect them to follow agricultural pursuits.

We do not wish to be understood as advocating the teaching of agricultural pursuits to the exclusion of everything else. We are fully cognizant of the fact that all boys are not fitted for farming. We insist, however, that in a rural county like ours, schools should be established in certain sections of the county in order to give the farmers an opportunity to have their children taught farming in its various branches. It has been pleaded that no one can be found to do the teaching. We don't believe it. We know that this county has plenty of practical farmers who would be very glad to give instructions, during the winter months, in farming and it various branches. They have not been asked.

At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors held March 15, 1910, the following was, on motion, adopted.

WHEREAS, The Board of Directors of this bank regard it as a privilege to put upon record their high appreciation of the personal excellence and distinguished services of their former colleague; therefore

IN MEMORIAM—SAMUEL ROOP.

The Directors of The First National Bank of Westminster, at a regular meeting held on the twenty second day of March 1910 adopted the following minute as a permanent record in the Book of Minutes, for transmission to the family of the deceased and publication in the county papers:

It is with sincere regret that we learn of the death of Samuel Roop, born November 10th 1847, died Wednesday afternoon March 16th 1910. His whole life was spent in this community and among the people who by intimate association and business relations learned to admire his many virtues. He was endeared to all who enjoyed the great privilege of personal friendship. He especially impressed us by his quiet and unassuming demeanor, his sound and conservative judgment, his kindly feeling for all men, his honorable and upright life, and more especially his deep interest and concern for this institution with which he has been so long connected. Elected a Director April 21st 1883 and President August 1st 1905 he was known to this Board as others could not know him. None had such opportunities as we to learn the excellence of his character, and we desire this minute as a permanent record of our estimate of his valuable services as Executive, Director and associate. Appreciating our great loss we join with his family and friends in their sorrow and extend to them our earnest sympathy.

JACOB J. WEAVER, JR., President.
