MORE COSTLY TO THE DEMOCRATS

Digges Plan Will Lose Votes In Other States.

New York, April 4.—[Special]—New York Democrats, almost without exception, deplore the plan of the Maryland legislature to exclude the negro from certain voting privileges. The general opinion here seems to be that the Digges act will be declared unconstitutional.

Martin W. Littleton, who is a native Southerner, today said he considered that Maryland had made a great mistake. "The plan is unconstitutional," he said, "and not in accord with good politics or good sense. In many border states the negro is an important political factor. Many states, such as West Virginia and Missouri, are doubtful, and nothing should be done to discourage the negro vote. In several states the negroes are dissatisfied with the treatment they have received from the Republicans and are falling into line with the Democrats, but this Maryland plan would tend to drive all such men back into the Republican fold."

Chairman Conners, of the Democratic State Committee, said: "I don't like this Maryland system at all, and am sure that all conservative Democrats will agree with me that it will endanger the chances of the party, which have become very bright of late. It smacks of jobbery. There is no constitutional authority for the plan, and the courts will undoubtedly kill it, but harm has been done to the party generally by the attempt to exploit the Maryland scheme. Our chances for securing control of the next House are very bright, but, in my estimation, no greater blow could have been dealt us within the ranks than this one from Maryland."

Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy said: "I am sorry to see the negro question stirred up. In the Southern States, properly speaking, of course, this agitation does not affect the vote, as the negro is already practically disfranchised, but in many states it will have a serious effect on the Democratic party."

The Evening Post, in an editorial, in part says:

"The whole story of the Maryland disfranchising agitation is one that reflects peculiar discredit on the dominant party in that state. Prior to 1895, the government of the state, and of the city of Baltimore, had been held, for more than 20 years, firmly in the grip of one of the most unscrupulous, as it was one of the most powerful, political rings in the country. In that year, by an alliance between the Republicans and a strong body of Independent Democrats, the ring was overthrown. It is from the possession of the state and city governments by the Republicans in 1896, as the result of the decisive victory of November, 1895, that the improvement of governmental standards and governmental conditions both at Annapolis and Baltimore dates. Fair elections had been the cry of the Republicans and Independents in 1895, and ideally fair elections were established by the Republicans when they came into power. Yet no sooner had the Democrats regained possession of power than they began to introduce every possible sort of contrivance, in the way of election tricks, to make their tenure unshakable. The negro vote is only one-fifth of the total, but the issue of "white supremacy" has, nevertheless, been worked in the most frantic manner by the Democratic organization; and this without the possibility of pointing to any evil that has come of the negro vote either in the state government or in that of Baltimore city. In certain counties of the state it must be admitted that there have been complaints, but no sincere and genuine attempt has been made to grapple with any such trouble. Wholesale disfranchising schemes, on the model of the Southern constitutions, have twice been decisively voted down by the people. And now, instead of accepting this twice-rendered verdict, the successors of the Gorman-Rasin ring, aided by a few sincere but visionary lawyers who may be animated by the spirit of Calhoun, are resorting to this wild scheme to attain their end. It is not a pretty story, and the only conclusion is that it looks as if this latest chapter of it might be the last."

Lawyers of Anthens, Poorly Paid, Strike.

Athens, Greece, April 3.—A strike of lawyers has afforded the people of Athens some relief from high politics, which is the ordinary topic of conversation of great and small. Cabmen, waiters, and the little shoeblacks from Megalopolis, when not engaged in their avocations, are invariably deep in a newspaper reflecting the opinions of the party to which the reader adheres. That accounts in some measure for the fact that a town of 167-000 inhabitants manages to support ten or, it may be, twelve daily papers.

These industrials have a good deal of leisure. But the members of the Athenian Bar have more. It is said that if the aggregate earnings of barristers in England were equally divided, the income accruing to each could not be very great. But in Athens it could hardly be represented in currency. The proportion of lawyers to the laity is enormous. If the latter were all to engage in litigation they would scarcely provide the former with full employment.

The resources of journalism and political party work are utterly inadequate to fill the vacuum, and the situation leads to extraordinary developments. Tram tickets are not infrequently punched by gentlemen learned in the law.

The worst of it is that in this most democratic land, where social distinctions hardly exist, the thing is accepted as a commonplace occurrence. Elsewhere it would bring notoriety, and it might possibly mean work. However, the lawyers of Athens are on strike, and some of the courts have suspended their sittings. Though how a strike is going to better the situation is not at all clear. As the supply so greatly exceeds the demand, fewer lawyers is the only remedy. The bar cannot force the rest of the world to go to law.

The New Woman.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Woman, for the first time, has taken to experimenting. Heretofore man has been the experimenter, the adventurer, the dreamer. Woman has been a patient plodder, doing the useful things directly and intimately connected with the maintenance of life. Man has set things going, and woman has kept them going. Man's mind has been busy with the forming and directing of life, woman's with the act of living itself. Man has stood for variation and woman for the preservation of racial identity. Man has been progressive, liberal, insurgent; woman has been conservative.

But now the world has changed, life is different. Homes have given place to flats and hotel suites and co-operative kitchens. Social and economic conditions have freed much of woman's energy that must find vent in new activities. Woman is still the maker of the home, and must be as long as there are homes. But she wants to find herself in other forms of activity. So she tries everything that once was foreign to her being; she seeks all possible ways of fulfilling her larger nature. And she will find her place in the new scheme of things when all this unsettling is over and the readjustment has come.

Morton and Methuselah.

George B. Sloan was seconding the nomination of Levi P. Morton in the State convention in New York that named that aged statesman for governor.

The bosses had decreed the nomination of Morton, but there was a good deal of protest because Morton was, even then so old a man. However, the bosses had their way, and Sloan was sent up to make a seconding speech.

"Levi P. Morton," declaimed Sloan, "was born in Vermont. One hundred and nineteen years ago—"

He meant to go on with something about Ethan Allen and Ticonderoga but the continuity of his remarks was destroyed by a bull-voiced delegate who interrupted him just there with the bellowed inquiry: "Great Scott, is he as old as that?"

When Westminster Citizens Show the Certain Way Out.

There can be no just reason why any reader of this will continue to suffer the tortures of an aching back, the annoyance of urinary disorders, the dangers of diabetes of any kidney ills when relief is so near at hand and the most positive proof given that they can be cured. Read what a Westminster citizen says:

C. H. Campbell, Main St., Westminster, Md., says: I used Doan's Kidney Pills with highly satisfactory results for an attack of kidney complaint, that had bothered me for at least ten years. My back was weak and I tired easily, but the most annoyiny symptom of my trouble was a dull pain through my kidneys. My health was much run down and I was steadily growing worse. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at C. W. Moore's Drug Store. They gave me immediate relief and strengthened my back. I have great faith in Doan's Kidney Pills and take pleasure in recommending them to anyone suffering from kidney complaint."

Traffic Floods Railroads.

James J. Hill believes the railroads will experience next Fall and Winter the greatest traffic congestion in their history and he sees no way of preventing it.

"The tonnage which is being offered the railroads for transportation is constantly on the increase", he said, "and there is little doubt that the railroads will be called upon this year to furnish more transportation units than ever before. From all indications it seems certain that by next Fall or early Winter the railroads will be totally unable to furnish anything like the amount of transportation facilities which will be demanded by the country.

"The railroads really ought to have about $1,800,000,000 annually to spend for the next few years in order to catch up with the growing demands made upon them, but it is a well-known fact that they cannot get this money under present conditions. Until railroad credit shall have been restored and until the American public shall have gained confidence in railroad securities, the public will have to continue to suffer for the lack of railroad facilities."

A Second Truce.

The late John J. Ingalls, Senator from Kansas, let loose in the Senate one day about Conkling, Hancock and several other distinguished people. His remarks about Hancock were particularly severe.

Joe Blackburn, then Senator from Kentucky, was chosen to answer Ingalls, and he took a good deal of hide off the brilliant Kansan. In one paragraph Blackburn said: "And this man has the temerity to assail Hancock—Hancock the Superb—who was giving of his life's blood on the heights of Gettysburg while the Senator from Kansas was skulking along behind a regiment of Kansas jayhawkers, trying those jayhawkers in the capacity of judge advocate for robbing hen-roosts."

There was more of the same kind, and everybody thought there would be trouble, inasmuch as Ingalls was high-pirited and Blackburn unafraid.

After the Senate adjourned Blackburn and Ingalls met, face to face, in the corridor in front of the Marble Room. A dozen spectators looked for carnage.

Ingalls stopped, looked squarely into Blackburn's eyes and Blackburn glared back.

"Joe," said Ingalls, putting out his hand, "isn't this cruel war over?"

"It is," said Blackburn, taking the offered hand and they went off arm in arm.

Dorton's New Idea.

Mr. Frederick T. Dorton, supervisor of census for Baltimore, will inaugurate a new feature in connection with the taking of the thirteenth census of the United States. He will gather together his four hundred enumerators and will give specific instructions for their guidance in an address on the evening of April 14 in the large auditorium of the Baltimore Business College. The Supervisor will endeavor to anticipate the difficulties that the enumerators may encounter and instruct them how to overcome them. Following the address the Supervisor will invite the enumerators to a heart-to-heart talk with himself and his special agents, so that they may ask any questions they may see fit.

The taking of census must begin on April 15. Special attention will be drawn to the instructions as to deportment.
