AMERICAN SENTINEL.

WESTMINSTER, - MARYLAND.

JOS. D. BROOKS, Editor.

Entered at the Postoffice at Westminster, Md., as Second-class matter.

FRIDAY, JULY 15, 1910.

"Flee as a bird to yon mountain," has become a reality.

The assessors are abroad in the land. Some people will now be hunting the cyclone cellar.

We believe in a free press; but when a newspaper publishes any matter calculated to corrupt the morals of the young it should be suppressed.

The Hon. Wm. J. Bryan is doing some insurging too. The Democrats are not the happy family they would have you think. Mr. Bryan is not the only one "off the reservation."

With the Sunday newspapers filled with stuff worse than that found in the commonest dime novel is it any wonder our hard working ministers and Sunday School teachers find it so hard to get the children interested in the teachings of Christ?

The press is supposed to be the moulder of public opinion and to represent the prevailing sentiment of the country but if it persists in publishing matters tending to degrade the people and create a race prejudice it becomes a nuisance in the community.

The "back to the farm movement" is going to be a mighty tough proposition as long as the cities hold out so many inducements to the young. It is better for the young of the farms to never know of or see a large city than to enter one and be ground up in the multitude of people and lost forever.

One would have thought a Democratic convention was being held at the Court House on Tuesday. The newly appointed assessors of "visible," and "invisible" property were there to get blanks and "instructions." The same familiar faces seen at Democratic conventions were conspicuous. Some of them have been coming and going up and down the paths of Democracy for "lo these many years." Somehow or other, they must be provided for, and it makes no difference how small the office; just so it is an "office."

Many of the daily papers published in our large cities, in answer to the criticisms passed upon their publication of the recent prize fight, have taken defense on the plea that it is the business of a newswaper to publish everything that is going on in the world so that the readers can see the bad as well as the good and can shape their lives accordingly. They also tell us that to publish nothing but the purest matters would mean the bankruptcy of over one-half of the papers. Some of them have cited the New York Evening Post, whose circulation they state is only 80,000, as a sample of purity in journalism, and the New York Journal, whose circulation is 800,000, as a sample of so called yellow journalism. They then wind up with the statement that the latter paper is making a great deal of money while the first named is making very little. If making money is the end to be sought, irregardless of how many souls are sent to perdition, then yellow journalism is a grand commercial success.

But is money making the one and only end to be sought in journalism? When we speak of our "glorious free press," don't we now, and didn't we at the very beginning of our government mean a clean and pure press? Such an one we could hand to our sons and daughters to read without fear of having their morals corrupted?

The Grange Home Life and Social Purity.

The strength and grandeur of a nation consists, not in its wealth or material possessions, but in the virtue and intelligence of its people and the number of its happy homes.

To have a home of one's own is an ambition that should possess the soul of every individual. In this way only can domestic happiness be attained, and this lies at the basis of our Christian civilization. The love element in human nature blossoming into marriage and ripening into parenthood, is as natural as the blossoming of the rose or the ripening of the grain and cannot safely be ignored.

So deep and dark and hopeless is the gulf that yawns in the pathway of unregulated desire, that everything available in the form of a counteracting element should be pressed in to the service by the friends of social purity. In thisview, the religious instinct in the young should be developed, and a love of the true and the beautiful in nature, in art, and in literature should be cultivated. Literature and theatrical representations of an immoral or hurtful tendency should be avoided and discouraged.

But, more important still, the way should be made easy both socially and financially for the establishment and maintenance of a comfortable home by every individual who desires to do so. This is far from being the case at present.

This is the great problem with which the advocates of social purity have to deal at the present time and how it is to be solved in the face of present commercial and social conditions, it is difficult to determine. What is required at present is not old age pensions, nor any other form of charity, but a living wage, or full and fair remuneration for the services of each and every individual, thus enabling him to marry and support a family in comfort and security.

The Twenty-first Annual Reformed Church Reunion was held at Pen-Mar yesterday, when the churches of Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia were represented to the number of 5,000.

Alexander Neil, president of the Hagerstown Bank, and for years one of the leading lawyers of Western Maryland, died Thursday morning at his cottage, near Blue Ridge Summit. He was 66 years old.

The complete program for the Salvation Army annual camp-meeting at Glyndon Park, which begins July 23 and closes August 1 inclusive, has been announced.

Mr. Oliver J. Carlisle, a well-known young farmer, of Baltimore county, died yesterday in Reisterstown, after an illness of a month. Death was due to rapid tuberculosis.

Odd Fellows' Reunion at Pen-Mar.

The Odd Fellows' of Maryland and Pennsylvania will hold their reunion on Thursday, August 4th, which will be a week later than the last of the church reunions. The grand masters of Pennsylvania and Maryland will be invited to be present and make addresses. The railroad companies will be asked to run special trains for the excursionists on that day.

ONE OF WESTMINSTER'S LEADING INDUSTRIES.

A visit to the grounds of the Westminster Nursery, located on the Gorsuch road, near this city will open the eyes of our citizens as to the greatness of its business. Mr. J. E. Stoner, the proprietor, has been in the nursery business all of his life and thoroughly understands it. There are now millions of fine trees and plants growing upon the ground and a force of men are hoeing, pruning, budding, cultivating and spraying trees and plants. There is scarcely a weed to be seen and the trees and plants are nicely arranged in blocks. Mr. Stoner stated that in one block there were over 100,000 budded peach trees, of the best varieties, budded on seedlings grown from the Kansas natural seeds, which are noted for their hardiness. They are a perfect picture, and Mr. Stoner stated that to the best of his information they were the only peaches of the class East of the Mississippi river. Planters of peach trees make a note of this.

Mr. Stoner has several blocks of California Privet Hedging containing over 150,000 plants. He imports yearly ffom France thousands of fruit and ornamental trees and will bud this season upwards of half a million peach, apple, pear, cherry and plum trees. He annually ships stock to nearly every state East of the Mississippi river, but Maryland, Pennsylvania and New York, however, get the bulk of his stock. This last spring he shipped to one nursery firm in New York over 30,000 plants and trees. The Westminster Nursery is a credit to Westminster and Carroll county and a visit to it will repay you for your trouble and give you an idea of the immense stock produced by it.

OUR JULY CLEARANCE

The Greatest Of All!

There are times of the year when a concern makes its profit, and there are times when it must take a loss in order to rid itself of its stocks at the end of each season. The Miller Bros. Co. July Clearance has but one object in view---the absolute clearance of every dollars worth of summer goods in the house. However big the loss we must take, everything must go---we simply won't carry a thing over. We haven't removed a tag---we simply marked the reduced price underneath the original figures---and the savings range one-fourth to one-third.

This isn't a sale of ordinary merchandise--remember, you will get original MILLER BROTHERS Styles and quality. This difference of merchandise is a big factor--- keep it in mind when deciding where to shop.
