listened to with great interest and with warm expressions of satisfaction at your kind and earnest manner of the Institution in your wandering abroad. In some of your extemporaneous chatting there was a peculiar fitness to our present condition. I believe as to style of building. We obtained from the legislature last winter a grant of $50.000 for additions to our buildings and a special committee chosen of the work of improving them and extending the usefulness. There not been much pleased with the plan adopted and found your ideas coincidding very much with mine – especially as to dormitories and lofty buildings. However, our committee is a very intelligent one, and, as Mr Corson remarked, when if we are to have what we really, it is worth our while to put up this addition for now in the interval. We had our closing exercises on Wednesday last and I took occa-
