WILL HELP THE WESTERN MARYLAND

The Western Maryland Railroad will enter into an agreement shortly with the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, under which all traffic originating on the latter road and designated for Pittsburgh would be delivered by way of the new Western Maryland extension from Cumberland to Connellsville, and from the latter city over the lines of the Pitsburg and Lake Erie, a subsidiary of the New York Central Railroad. The interchange of traffic is expected to greatly benefit both roads. The Reading, it is understood, has a big traffic bound for Pittsburg, which it can throw to the Western Maryland. The latter will be able to divert considerable business to the Reading designated for points along its line.

"IMMORTALITY" HIS THEME

Rev. H. L. Elderdice Preaches at Associate Congregational

Rev. Hugh Latimer Elderdice, president of Westminster Theological Seminary, a graduate of Yale College, preached at the Associate Congregational Church, Baltimore, Sunday morning and evening, in the absence of Rev. Dr. Huckel, who is absent attending the session of the Congregational churches in Boston. Dr. Elderdice's sermon was on "Immortality," from Timothy II, 1, 10-11: "Jesus Christ hath abolished death, and brought life and immortality to light through the Gospel." Dr. Elderdice spoke of the deaths of the three martyr presidents and asked the old question, Are they really dead? He gave the answers of agnosticism and infidelity, as well as of modern Sadduceeism. But he said that any definition of immortality without eternal personality is a dissappointment. If man is only matter, he must share the fate of matter. But the mind, the soul, has its own form and organization within the body and separable from the body.

Science can find no tests outside of the physical world. But science cannot test the existence or size of love or of patriotism, or say from physical analysis what either weighs. Immortality may be inferred from philosophy and logic, but cannot be proved by either. All nations desire immortality and have a horror of death. Wrongs cannot be righted except in a future life. Without such life the present is a failure, human action is a burlesque and conscience a curse. Underlying love itself proves immortality.

As to the worth of life, the question depends on the kind of life. If for pleasure only, it is not worth living. If life goes on in the fear of God and in the keeping of his commandments, it is worth living, because it is the beginning of the everlasting fulness of joy.

MANY FARMERS TO MEET

Everybody Asked to Come to the Horticultural Show

ALL STATE FRUITS ON VIEW

Even Bees Represented in Exhibit That Should Prove Highly Educational

The thirteenth annual exhibition of the Maryland State Horticultural Society will be held in the Fifth Regiment Armory, in Baltimore, November 28 to December 2 inclusive. The best feature of the exhibition is the general invitation for everybody to visit it free. Cash premiums amounting to nearly $700 are offered and the competition will be keen. Only a very few years ago the entire exhibition was placed in one small room. Now it requires 50,000 square feet of floor space or nearly all of the drill hall of the armory.

The apple crop has been good in most parts of the State this year, and many bushels of the finest specimens are now on cold storage waiting for the show. The tables will be loaded down with big apples, little apples and all shades of red, green and yellow apples. From year to year a marked improvement in the grade of apples exhibited has been observed. The growers are learning how to produce and select prizewinning specimens. The success of Maryland apples in capturing premiums in competition with the entire country has given the growers confidence in their own product and has given apple culture a great impetus throughout the State. The quality of Maryland apples is second to none in this country.

In the department of flowers the exhibits will be especially beautiful and attractive. The mammoth chrysanthemums will divide honors with the more popular roses and carnations of brightest hue. Specimen plants and evergreens will be there in great groups. The Park Board of Baltimore will display wagonloads of its choicest greenhouse plants in the most artistic grouping and massing.

The trucking interests of the State will not be neglected. Generous premiums will be given all along the line from the humble turnip to the highly cultivated cauliflower and sweet potato.

The Dairyman's Association is young in years, but old in experience and most active in pushing the dairy interests of the State. There are large areas in Maryland especially adapted to dairying, but the prices for milk and butter have not always been satisfactory in the past. This association is encouraging more sanitary conditions around and in the stables and dairies, improving the quality of dairy products, increasing the financial returns to the dairymen and elevating the standard of all dairy products.

The exhibit will consist of the most modern dairy apparatus.

For samples of milk alone cash premiums totaling $125 are offered. This will stimulate competition, and a big exhibit of milk is assured.

The third annual meeting of the Maryland Beekeepers' Association will begin in the Armory November 30. The address of welcome will be made by Mayor Mahool and the response by W. M. McCardell, of Gaithers, Md. A three-session program is arranged extending to noon Thursday. Prominent beekeepers from out of the State have accepted invitations to address the meeting on different phases of apiculture. There are more than 5,000 beekeepers in Maryland, and it is expected to have a large crowd present at the meeting.

The Maryland Cereal and Forage Crop Breeders' Association is preparing for much larger exhibits this year than ever before. Nearly $300 is offered in cash prizes alone. Premiums are offered on all the staple farm crops grown on the farm in 1910 not listed among the horticultural products.

With the show will be held a meeting of the State Grange. The grange in Maryland has made a substantial growth during the past year. Somerset county, that had no farmers' organization one year ago, now has six granges, with over 300 members. There have been four new granges organized in Cecil county the past month

MEETING OF THE STOCKHOLDERS OF W. M. R. R.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Western Maryland Railroad was held at the general offices of the company in the Continental Trust Building on Wednesday forenoon. While there were but a comparatively small number of the shareholders present, the stock was well represented by proxies, about 76 per cent of the shares being voted.

All of the retiring directors were re-elected without any show of opposition and they will meet for organization at the regular session of the directors the first Tuesday in November, when the present officers will be re-elected for the ensuing year. The report submitted covered the detailed operation of the road for the six months ended June 30 last, together with an appended statement of the receiver covering the entire time that the road was in the hands of the United States courts. These reports have received full publicity in the newspapers.

Both President Bush and Vice-President Robinson submitted confidential reports to the stockholders, relating principally to the progress being made on the Cumberland extension and the future policy of the management when connection with the Pittsburg and Lake Erie shall have been established. The full pamphlet report of the operations of the road, both under the present management and the receivership, will be published in a few weeks. A resolution very complimentary to President Bush and his fellow-officials was submitted by a prominent stockholder and enthusiastically adopted by those present.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR REPUBLICANS.

These are the rainbow days of the Democracy. These are the days when landslides are predicted and when gentlemen on the Democratic side of the House announce their policies as speaker. These are the days when the next House will be Democratic by any majority you choose, provided only you choose a big enough majority. Chairman Lloyd of the Democratic congressional Committee, gives out interviews these days claiming everything, but taking very good care not to be specific as to where the majorities are to come from. The Democrats have 23 districts to win, and the well-informed among them concede that these 23 victories in Republican districts must come from New England, New York and New Jersey. There are those who speak of capturing the Republican districts in the Middle West. Indeed, a story came to Washington this morning that Iowa, Republican Iowa, the State of Senator Cummins, was in grave doubt, and that the next delegation from Iowa would be Democratic. It is on such idle stuff that Democratic hopes are fed, and it shows the desperation of Democratic dreamers, who look in vain to find substantial grounds for their claims. Undoubtedly the Republicans will lose a district here and there. But those Democrats who are capturing districts in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maryland, will do well to look closer home. Thus, for instance, Tennessee has eight Democrats now and only two Republicans, and there is grave doubt that the party will return as many Democrats; in Virginia the Democrats are almost certain to lose one district; there is a Democratic district in Georgia that is more than doubtful; of the seven Democratic tickets in North Carolina at least two are in doubt. And so the element of doubt runs through the entire list. The situation as to the House of Representatives is, as it has been always after the passage of a new tariff law. There is discontent and specious demagogues will make the most of incidental hardships of the new law. But it must never be forgotten that the Democrats have 23 districts to win and there is no method of figuring, however ingenuous, that will present a convincing statement of where these 23 Democratic victories are to be won.

Popular interest this year is greater everywhere in the state ticket than in the House of Representatives. The elections this year in the states seem to be regarded by general consent as an indication of the national ticket in 1912. Thus, in Indiana, the Democrats frankly say that if they can carry the state, Governor Marshall will be their candidate for the presidency. In Ohio, it is certain that if Governor Harmon is re-elected he will prove almost invincible for the Democratic nomination. In New York it is the general impression that the work of the Republican convention of 1912 is foreshadowed by the result of the State elections. Everywhere this year there is greater interest in the state than in the national ticket. And, therefore, it is of greater present interest to consider the local contests in the various states.

OUR STATE FAIRS

While the displays of vegetables is falling off, except potatoes, fruits are more liberally shown every year. It may not be generally known that Maryland is rapidly becoming a great-potato-producing State. Another interest in the fairs that has rapidly grown in importance is the poultry exhibits. Instead of a side issue as it used to be at some of the large fairs the poultry exhibit has become "it." At Hagerstown the new poultry house, just completed at a cost of $14,000, which has a cooping capacity of 10,000 chickens, proves how great has become this industry.

The fruit exhibits of Hagerstown and Frederick Fairs have yearly improved, and the apples exhibited cannot be excelled in any state, either in type, color or flavor, of the respective kinds shown. The increased interest in fruit culture in Maryland and the yield of fruit products is a very pleasant revelation of what in fact can be accomplished if the resources are embraced intelligently. The output of new orchards annually is a source of wonder. There has been in the past five years a greater interest manifested in growing fruit than ever before known in the State. The awakening has been caused by the Maryland Horticultural Society and the excellent meetings held by the farmers' institutes under the direction of Mr. William L. Amos. The quality of the products of a state that are of a character to attract universal interest in other States and markets are mediums of advertising of great value. The Maryland State Horticultural Society is doing splendid home missionary work, and at the same time showing the outside world that the orchard fruits of the State excel in quality as well as her small fruits. Maryland strawberries, cantaloupes and peaches have a national reputation, and it is only a matter of short time before "Maryland apples" stamped on a box will make good too. It can be accomplished if the fruit-growers will properly aid the Horticultural Society in its efforts to show the people what the State now produces in these kindred lines.

WICKERSHAM TELLS THIS ONE

Attorney General Wickersham is a story teller. He brought the following tale back from the Northwest and told it at the White House:

A man there was who was in mortal fear of his wife, especially when he indulged in spirits to excess and forgot to go home until the early hours of the morning. One night he drank until he became hilarious, and it was in the small hours of the morning that he reached his home. He gained an entrance without arousing his sleeping spouse.

Shoeless he climbed the stairway, opened the door of the bedroom, entered and closed it after him without being detected. Just as he was about to get into bed his wife, half aroused from her slumber, turned and sleepily said: "Is that you, Fido?"

The husband telling the rest of the story, replied: "For once in my life I had real presence of mind. I licked her hand."

The Famous Angle Lamp

Never smokes or smells whether burned at full height or turned low like gas. It is not merely an ordinary lamp improved. It is an entirely new method of oil lighting. For simplicity and convenience of operation it is the closest rival of gas or electricity. For splendid reading, full and artistic general illumination it is the superior of either. The angle at which the flame burns throws the best light from its most brilliant surface directly downward. The efficiency of the light is doubled, producing a reading light with which no other system can even compare. Yet the Angle Lamp is the most economical of all lighting methods. Costs less to burn than even the ordinary lamp—fully ½ less. But call and see it or write us for full description booklet.
