SIDE TWO

All sounds as of old, save the brief telling of ~~them~~ at the beginning & the close. & to the ~~Lord~~ of our dear little castle be ascribed only ally empty earthly honor, to be given in ye Lord, let us understand these things, & not Hunkil strange as the some blessings being had happened to us. on every occasion the important of such occurrence. These unfamiliars are soon to cease forever with the delightful union of our "earthly home" to be given exchanged by a building of God set up in ye heavens, where there is no sorrow in the song - no winter in ye year!".
It is not be any to from you Jacobinism hurtful - Do not suffer it to withdraw you from those who are more collectively yet hold in Communion with yourself, for Saving Faith of Religion - There such concord attains, con-munion, you know, further agreement are then forth "and knits the knots of peace & love throughout all Christian lands"

But of this you know so much more & better than I do, that I ought to be ashamed to write thus -

Mrs Johns & my daughter joins in love to Mrs Morris & yourself - Happy if we be to be with you under your own roof - happiness still to welcome you to Malvern -

You see that a trembling hand has driven me to use a pencil - a course that I manage badly - but I must not assure you that the shaking hand is unaccompanied by any unstrained sign of affection for you & yours -

Truly your friend
A Johns
