WHAT ABRAHAM LINCOLN WAS DOING ON HIS BIRTHDAY FIFTY YEARS AGO

By J. A. EDGERTON

Copyright, 1911, by American Press Association

ON Feb. 12, 1861, Abraham Lincoln was on his way to Washington to take the oath of office as president. The day previous, Feb. 11, he had left his home in Springfield to begin that memorable journey from which he was never to return. The simple and touching little speech of farewell to his neighbors has since become a classic. The night of Feb. 11 was spent in Indianapolis, then little more than an overgrown country village. The Indianapolis address of the president elect was a momentous one in that it broke his long silence and gave an anxious country a line on the future policy of the incoming administration.

Feb. 12 Mr. Lincoln was fifty-two years old. It was a mild and beautiful day. Early in the morning Mrs. Lincoln and her two sons joined the presidential party. Governor Oliver P. Morton called at the Bates House, where Mr.

LINCOLN'S PRIVATE CAR AND FACSIMILE OF INVITATION TO RIDE ON SPECIAL TRAIN WHICH TOOK THE PRESIDENT ELECT FROM SPRINGFIELD TO WASHINGTON.

Lincoln had lodged, and drove the president elect and his companions to breakfast at the governor's mansion. An immense crowd filled the corridors of the hotel and adjoining streets, and an even greater multitude had gathered about the depot, to which the party were escorted by a committee of the legislature and the governor. At shortly after 10 o'clock the trip eastward was resumed amid the shouts of the people.

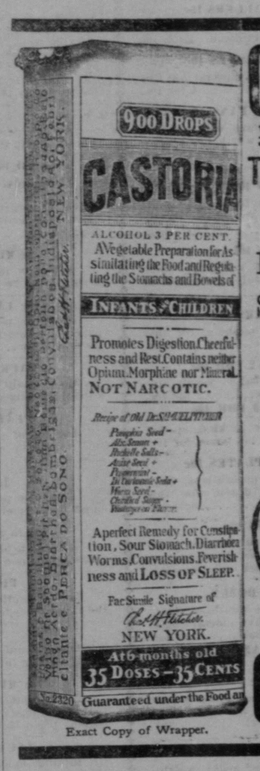

One picturesque feature of the journey was that every half mile the railroad had stationed flagmen to indicate that the line was open and everything was all right. Instead of the usual red or white railroad signals, however, these men waved American flags.

Short stops were made at Shelbyville, Greensburg, Morris and Lawrenceburg, and at each point Mr. Lincoln said a few words in farewell. The crowds were not confined to these larger towns, however. At every station was heard the sound of cheering as the Lincoln train whizzed by.

The crowd was so great at Cincinnati that the train had to stop until the police and military could force a way for the locomotive. Those on the track tried to get out of the way, but the multitude behind prevented. Mr. Lincoln was met at the station by the mayor of the city and escorted by a military and civic procession to the Burnet House.

After a brief rest Mr. Lincoln was escorted to the balcony, where he was introduced by the mayor. Referring to the only speech he had ever made in Cincinnati, the president elect quoted from this address some humorous remarks he had made to the Kentuckians. He had told them that the Republicans would beat them and had also promised what the victors would do with them when beaten. "I will tell you," he had then said, "what we mean to do with you. We mean to treat you as near as we possibly can as Washington, Jefferson and Madison treated you."

That night a reception was held at the Burnet House. It was remarked that the president elect looked very well and was in good spirits.

Woman Suffrage in California.

A woman suffrage amendment to the Constitution, framed on the Colorado law, passed the California Senate yesterday by a vote of 35 to 5.

Suffragists are accused of claiming too much in their arguments of making sweeping statements that are not borne out by facts. This week however we have fortunately some facts to offer that are hard and incontrovertible. On the 26th of January an amendment to the Constitution, conferring equal suffrage upon women, passed the California Senate by a vote of 35 to 5. It is true that there are other stages the amendment must go through before it can become a part of the constitution of the State, go to the House and the people having a bill to vote on it. But, as the New York Evening Post remarks, so one-sided a vote, 35 to 5, can only mean that the California Senators are convinced that the state is ready for the change. It is also worthy of note that the amendment is framed on the Colorado law. Colorado is near neighbors to California. Possibly the amendment is based on a closer observation of the working of woman suffrage in Colorado than are the assertions here of certain reckless Anti-suffragists who declare that suffrage for women is a failure in Colorado.

The next fact which we humbly beg to submit comes in the form of a despatch from Topeko. It reads thus:

"The committee of the lower house of the Kansas Legislature that has been investigating the question of equal rights for women yesterday voted unanimously to report favorably a Constitutional amendment for the enfranchisement of women."

And, still sticking to fact and nothing but fact, we quote another despatch, which is headed Little Rock, January 21, and which bears a strong family likeness to the last one quoted. Suffrage, it runs, for the women of Arkansas is proposed in a bill offered in the House of Representatives yesterday. Women over twenty-one years of age who are citizens of Arkansas will be allowed the right of suffrage if the bill becomes a law. The reading of the bill was greeted with applause.

It was men of Arkansas, presumably who applauded the reading of this bill though no doubt there were women in the galleries of the House of Representatives who also had their satisfaction audible. It would almost seem that there is conspiracy among men in the Western States to justify and encourage suffragists in their sweeping statements.

What suffragists are doing themselves, besides making statements which displease their opponent, may be seen from the following despatch from Rochester, New York also under date of January 21:

"Following the plan outlined by the woman suffrage leaders in New woman suffrage leaders of in New city, the Rochester Political Equality Club, the local suffrage organization, will conduct a house-to-house canvass of this city to ascertain the sentiment in regard to women suffrage, and to stimulate interest in the cause."

It now, however becomes our painful duty to chronicle a case that has gone against us. We give in full heading and text of the despatch as printed by the Baltimore Sun. But we ask attention to two facts, the first that a resolution looking to woman's suffrage reached a vote in the Legislature in question, and the second that no less than forty-five members, out of a total of 99 present, cast their votes in favor of it.

Women Lose In Michigan.

Legislature Defeats Resolution For Popular Vote On Suffrage.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 31.—The Michigan Legislature by a vote of 55 to 44 defeated today the resolution calling for the submission of the question of woman suffrage to the people in November, 1912.

The measure required a two-third's majority, 67 votes, to pass.

We confidently invite our readers to observe future developments in Michigan. With so large a proportion of legislators on their side the women of the state are not likely to remain inactive. Since their defeat at Annapolis last winter the women of Maryland have become tenfold more energetic and resourceful. Now they are thinking of defeating in the next elections candidates who are opposed to suffrage. From thought to accomplishment will not seem, to anyone who has followed their methods and progress an impossible step for the women of Baltimore.

It has been the endeavorance of this column to speak for women in general, and not to thrust the Just Government League into notice. But for once we depart from our custom in order to quote on editorial from a Baltimore paper, and the advertisement which gave birth to the editorial:

Opportunity Grasped.

That those women of Maryland who are quietly but effectively working to the end that their sex may be enfranchised are endowed with foresight and the ability to grasp an opportunity is evidenced by the front page of today's best newspaper in Baltimore.

With national figures in one of the two great parties gathered here for a national celebration of the birthday of their most honored prototype, the women have placed in the most prominent position before the public eye the sound basic foundation upon which their just claims to the ballot rest.

May those among Baltimore's hosts and guests who may in future have the power to forward this great movement for human rights read their logic with open minds!

Incidently, it is a significient, if an accidental coincidence, that among the wills the terms of which are published in the local prints here today there is one in which a woman in life herself an ardent advocate of the rights of her sex, in death bequeaths a substantial sum of money to carry on the propaganda.

It is such things as this that show how deeply in earnest are the women. And who can withstand a woman in earnest?

TEST OREGON PLAN

IN SUPREME COURT.

Highest Tribunal To Pass On "Democracy And Republicanism."

Washington, Feb. 1. The Supreme Court is about to decide the difference between republicanism and democracy.

Not between the Republican and the Democratic parties. But it is to sit, this spring, on the great series of questions involved in the Oregon plan of popular government, and decide whether it is constitutional.

The Oregon plan is democratic; its people admit it; it is defended as such; and the question the Court will have to decide is whether it is also republican. The Constitution of the United States guarantees to all the States a republican form of government.

Democracy is defined by the Standard dictionary as "the political system in which the government is directly exercised or controlled by the people; government by the people." Republicanism is defined in the same compendium as "the system of government by elective representatives."

Oregon has both; elective representatives have certain powers of legislation, but the people may negative those powers; they may undo or they may add to the legislation which the elective representatives pass. Oregon permits the people to initiate their own laws and adopt them; initiating by petition and adopting them by popular vote. No elective representative has any part in it. On the other hand, Oregon has a Legislature, elected by the people, which can pass laws. The people can repeal, under the initiative and referendum, the laws passed by the Legislature, or they can pass laws never thought of by it.

The whole initiative and referendum movement is involved in the pending decision of the Supreme Court. While the country's eyes have been on the cases involving the Satndard Oil and other great corporations, almost no popular attention has been given to the case which involves the very life and death of the movement to democratize government. Yet the case is shortly to be reached in the Supreme Court; probably it will be disposed of within the present year.

HOW ONE DREAM CAME TRUE.

"A good many years ago a young Irishman fresh from the old sod, Tom Hunter by name, settled in Philadelphia and put all the money he had in a grocery store," said Mr. J. H. Paist, of that city, at the Eutaw House, Baltimore, on Monday last.

"The store was a failure because its owner trusted everybody who asked credit, and utterly bankrupt, he was compelled to close the doors of his place. A man from whom he had purchased goods was stuck by the energy and absolute honesty displayed by Hunter, even if his venture had not been a success, and this man offered to assist him financially, provided he had the faith and courage to make another trial.

"Tom Hunter jumped eagerly at the offer of help. 'While I lay in bed this morning,' he said, 'despondent over my reverses, I had a vision of future success and I am absolutely certain of my ability to realize it.' Then he told his friend what the vision was. It was a dream of establishing and operating not one, but a score or perhaps two score groceries. He would run them on rather new and distinct lines for one thing insisting on cash payment from all customers and of economizing in every detail. The goods were to be sold at the lowest margin of profit and no deliveries were to be made, thereby saving the expense of teams and drivers.

"He wound up by saying it was perhaps only a foolish dream that nobody would take seriously. But it was taken seriously by his hearer, who instantly advanced the money for store No. 1, telling the other that if he made it a success the store would be given to him outright. There is no use to weave a long story, so to cut it short I will tell you that Tom Hunter is today owner not of 20 but of 200 stores in the city of Philadelphia—such places in every respect as he had seen in his vision. Rarely has he opened one that has not been a success, but the few exceptions were promptly closed after three months' trial had demonstrated they would not pay.

"Not long ago he rented an entire door of one of our leading hotels for occupancy of his family on a yearly contract of $17,000. At the outset of his new departure, when he little thought the chain would reach the 200 mark, his wife remarked to him one day: Tom, I want you to give me just 50 cents a week pinmoney for every store you open.' He smilingly agreed and so from this seemingly trivial source Mrs. Hunter claims today pinmoney to the amount of $400 a month.

THE WIDOW'S SIGN.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

Unobtrusive, in a quiet square of an uptown street, a certain little store escapes the notice of the casual passer-by. Occasionally, however, one does direct his eyes that way, and is amply repaid.

A little blue and white sign, all modestly without punctuation, respectfully invites the passing attention:

The Widow Brinkly store
God so love the world I have bread candies cakes and ice-cream to sell and other things from one cent up.

DON'T EXPERIMENT

You Will Make No Mistake If You Follow This Advice.

Never neglect your kidneys.

If you have pain in the back, urinary disorders, dizziness and nervousness, it's time to act and no time to experiment. These are all symptons of kidney trouble, and you should seek a remedy which is known to act on the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use. No need to experiment. It has cured many stubborn cases in this vicinity.

Can Westminster residents demand further proof than that contained in the following testimonial?

Payton Brown, Union Bridge, Md., says: "For fifteen years I was afflicted with kidney trouble. My back was lame and painful and ached so severely at night that I could not obtain my proper rest. I often felt languid and nervous and was bothered by dizzy spells. The kidney secretions contained sediment and their frequency in passage was a source of much annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me in two weeks and I have taken them since then with great benefit. I take pleasure in giving this remedy my endorsement."
