MANCHESTER.

The members of the Aid Society of Emanuel Lutheran Church held an oyster and chicken supper in the I. O. O. F. Hall on Saturday evening, 25th, inst., that was largely attended and proved a success both socially and financially. The Hall that was so beautiful American on the 22nd was disrobed and made a spring like fairy land. The scenery of the stage was hid with white hangings trimmed with large palm leaves shut in with large open portiers of golden hue with ice cream in large living green letters. The hall proper was trimmed with festoonings of pink and green with large branches of peach in full bloom that under the gas light were so natural that you were almost convinced that you smelled the bloom. Two long tables occupied the center of the room. The announced hour for supper was 5 P. M. but 4.30 already were patrons there. We arrived at 6 P. M. and found 50 persons eating and 150 getting hungry waiting so that when one person was leaving the table there were half dozen in scramble for the seat. That continued until nearly 300 suppers were served while the ice cream booth was doing a rushing business. On entering the hall your attention was drawn to the right where an old lady in sun bonnet stood dressed in attractive style, her dress was covered with pockets each bearing a number and each containing a package. If you had curiosity to know what the packages contained you could invest from a penny to a nickle and buy a rose that bore a number which corresponded to a number on the lady's dress. You then received the package. Miss Laura Myers conducted the affair and did a fine business. It was an innovation on the old grab bag and was as good. But the fancy table to the left did its share, while the cake table was groaning under the weight of the fine cakes contributed by the members, all of which was got rid of ere the close. Every body was in the best of social humor and as a diversion from the excitement was ready to join in a cake walk that was much enjoyed and brought in bumper prices for some of the cakes. At a committee meeting on Monday evening a final settlement was made and $150.04 was paid into the hands of the treasurer as the net proceeds. If the push, energy the determination of the ladies of the committee who championed this enterprise was in the congregation as a whole, with a little sacrifice the building of a new church would be among the possibilities, or the repair of the old one an easy matter in the very near future.
