A HERO IN A WELL.

Lettter-carrier Risks Life to Save a Welldigger.

Dore Christ, a welldigger, who has been working on a well on the property of Edward Yingling, near the Pool, about two miles from this city, Tuesday morning about 7.30 o'clock climbed down the wall of the well, which is 55 feet deep, and was soon partially overcome, supposedly by the fumes of a dynamite blast which he had exploded on Monday afternoon. Unable to help himself, he could not be drawn out without someone going down into the well. None of the people around were willing to take the risk, and Christ remained in the six inches of water at the bottom of the well until 3 o'clock, when Walter Coppersmith, rural letter carrier, returning from his morning route to his home nearby, appeared upon the scene and volunteered to rescue the man. He was lowered in the bucket into which, not without difficulty, he dragged the semiconscious welldigger, who was alive, though chilled. Then, though the rope was old and liable to break from the unusual strain, Coppersmith got into the bucket with him to prevent him from having his head knocked against the stones and from falling from the bucket. They were drawn up in safety and Dr. Henry M. Fitzhugh was summoned. Christ is on his feet today, but very weak.

Dr. Fitzhugh does not hesitate to say that the peril to Coppersmith was so great, both from possible fumes of gas and from liability of the rope to break that he should have a Carnegie Medal for saving the man's life at the risk of his own. Coppersmith, when seen Wednesday, spoke very modestly of his brave act. He says that the man was in the well, had been there for more than seven hours, and there was nothing to do but to get him out.

Twenty-three members were conveyed to her home in the large sight-seeing automobile of the Liberty Transportation Co., leaving Winfield at 6.30 a. m., we arrived in the city at 10 a. m., after a delay of 20 minutes, just enough to let us know there are two sides to motoring. After our arrival we held our meeting which was very interesting. Then we were served with a much "needed" dinner of which Mrs. Bosworth is thoroughly competent of preparing. After doing all the damage we could to her dining room, we proceeded to take in the town, after which we returned to our homes, arriving in Winfield about 9 p. m. In expressing our appreciation to our President, Mrs. Leanna Zile, to whom the credit is due for the pleasant trip we simply voted it a "Jolly Good Time."

But we wish it plainly understood that the finances of our Society did not suffer any, as each member paid her individual fare. Those who took the advantage of the trip were: Mrs. and Mrs. Ivan Sayers, Mesdames. Leanna Zile, Lucy Skidmore, Ethel Crawford, Carrie Farm, Amanda Shipley, Carrie Cronk' Josephine Fleming Mary Buckingham Sally Easton Maggie Zahner; Mrs. Fleming Mrs. Criswell Misses Addie and Goldie Fleming Mamie Farver Lillian Hoffman and Mrs. Nola Fleming.
