The reservoir is located 395 feet above the level of Boston, and as 300-foot head is considered ample for the city, the balance is to be used for the generation of power. A hydro-electric plant comprising four turbines of 1,000 kilowat capacity, has been installed. The plant has cost $125,000, but the current it will supply should bring in a revenue of $25,000 per annum.
