C 4 0 0

1874 January - May Cooper Morris Incoming letters #4

SIDE TWO

youngest son Reginald who has suffered a good deal from Rheumatism was advised to spend November at Cannes, which he has done, returning only last week: and I am thankful to say he seems better for the change. My eldest son has also just returned from a short visit to Paris. I want him to arrange to see your exhibition, for I think it would be very desirable for him to visit your country - the more so as our business relations in your side are increasing: but as you know, many people like to pursue their own course. I do not think I have any changes to record in our family circle. The chief subject of interest in London has been a mission which took place in February, after several weeks of preparation. Some of the most popular clergymen in the country were invited for the occasion, and the services were continued for 8 days successively with the exception of Saturday.

As far as I have had an opportunity of judging, the effect has been not only to increase the attendance at public worship, but to stir up Christian to greater exertion, and reaching to more earnestness. As the suggestion came originally from some of the extreme High Church clergy, it was feared that the mission