President Taft and Speaker Clark Carry the County by Small Majorities

The election yesterday was a very quiet one and was participated in by a small minority of both parties. The returns came in very early and by 10 o'clock last night the result was pretty well known at the Sentinel office where the returns were received. The farmers were too busy to go to the polls and most of the vote came from the towns and villages and was very small at that. Some of the districts which had been confidently predicted would go one way went the very opposite.

The vote in detail is as follows:

Dr. Simpson was a native of North Carolina, having been born in Rockingham county. He was graduated from Trinity College of that state in 1873, and was elected president of Yadkin College before his graduation.

From this position he was called, in 1883, to the chair of natural science in Western Maryland College, this city, with chemistry and geology as special studies. In 1879 he was ordained a minister of the Methodist Protestant Church, but continued to devote his life to the cause of education. Soon after coming to Western Maryland College he took a course of instruction in natural science at Johns Hopkins University and received from that institution the degree of doctor of philosophy, although it had been previously conferred upon him by a Lutheran college in North Carolina.

He held the chair of natural science in Western Maryland College until 1900, when the board of school commissioners of this county elected him county superintendent a position which he held continuously until his death. Ex-Pres. Roosevelt In Westminster

Ex-President Roosevelt speaking from stand in front of the office of the American Sentinel, Saturday last

A crowd, estimated between 1000 and 1500 persons greeted Ex-President Roosevelt upon his arrival in this city Saturday morning on the 9.27 train. In the absence of a receiving committee, the members of which seemed to have been lost in the crowd Joseph D. Brooks, of the Sentinel, escorted Col. Roosevelt to a stand, which had been erected in front of the Sentinel office and, after quiet was restored, introduced him to the audience. Although the space in front of the stand as far out as the center of Main street and to the left and right from West side of Liberty street to the Farmers' Fertilizer and Feed company's warehouse was packed with humanity the strictest attention was paid to every word uttered by the speaker and the very best of order prevailed. It was not a hurrah crowd, because every one present realized that the colonel had but a few minutes to speak and they wanted to hear every word uttered. His voice, considering the amount of speaking he had been doing, was in pretty fair condition, every word being heard even as far out as the center of Main street.

The front of the Sentinel office had been draped in bunting and flags and a picture of Abraham Lincoln occupied a position in the center of the building. Col. Roosevelt began speaking at 9.40 and continued until the 10 o'clock train arrived from Baltimore when he boarded his private car and left for Frederick, Md.

Col. Roosevelt is the second President to visit Westminster, President Grant having done so many years ago. Vice-President Fairbanks spoke here several years ago, but Col. Roosevelt is the first President, or rather Ex-President, to deliver an address in this city.

Just as Col. Roosevelt was about to board the train he met Captain John N. Weigle commander of Co. H. M. N. G. of this city, who served in Cuba during the Spanish War, and although the Colonel had not seen him in 14 years he knew him and recalled many of the things which took place immediately preceeding the famous charge up San Juan Hill. He has a remarkable memory for names and faces and the meeting with Cap. Weigle was only one of the numerous cases related of him. He seemed as pleased to see the Captain as if he had been a long lost brother

RESIGNATION OF CAPT. BAER

Captain James S. Baer, who has been connected with the tannery, at Tanneryy, this county for 42 years, 32 with Messrs. England and Bryan, and 10 with Messrs. Baer and Schllosser, has resigned, the resignation having taken effect May 1st., 1912. Bad health is assigned as a reason for the resignation.

Captain Baer has been a prominent and influential member of the Republican party for nearly half a century and his many political and personal friends will learn with regret that approaching age, with its accompanying ills, has compelled the old "war horse" to seek the shelter and retirement of his home.

Captain Baer's reputation as a tanner was world-wide, some of the leather which he tanned having taken first prize at the Paris Exposition.

The Sentinel hopes Captain Baer will soon regain his health and be spared many more years to his family and friends

On the way she accidentally fell and struck her knee on a sharp stone, which inflicted an ugly wound. She was taken home and a doctor was called in, who pronounced it a bad cut. She is mending slowly.

On Saturday night one of Mrs. Rinehart's horses got its foot fast in the stall. It resulted in an ugly wound above the hoof.

We are glad to note that our Sunday school is growing in number and interest. Come on and make it the banner year. There are still some who we would like to see come in.

We have a good one on the potato bug. One of our young men said he saw a dozen or more going into Doyle and Magee's to see who had ordered seed potatoes. How could they survive such a winter.

Medford Grange No. 188, Patrons of Husbandry Dedicates Its New Hall at Medford, This County

Medford Grange No. 188 Patrons of Husbandry, of Medford, this county completed its fine new hall sometime ago and on Saturday last dedicated the same. The ceremony was in charge of Prof. H. J. Patterson, Master of the State Grange, and he was ably assisted by M. E. Walsh, Past Master, of the Pomona Grange of Carroll county, and the following members of Medford Grange: Mrs. James Beacham, chaplain; Mrs. Charles Peltz, Lecturer; Mrs. Howard Devilbiss, Pomona; Mrs. Hollie Willet, Flora, and Mrs. Ella Martin, Ceres. Owing to sickness in his family Mr. Upton Gladhill, Master of Medford Grange, was unable to assist in the ceremony of dedication and his place was ably filled by Mr. M. E. Walsh, of this city. The Grange choir rendered excellent music.

Dinner was announced at 12.30 and all present repaired to the first floor of the building, which contains a large dining room and kitchen, where an excellent dinner was served.

After dinner the upper floor and stage were filled with an audience that seemed to enjoy the singing, speech making and general talks. Mrs. Chas. Peltz wielded the gavel in fine style and her commands were obeyed without protest, especially those to the speakers. The following program closed the exercises for the day: Hymn, choir; address, Prof. H. J. Patterson, of the Maryland Agriculture College; solo Miss Catherine Beacham; address, Col. Joseph A. Goulden, former member of Congress from New York City; hymn, choir; address, Mrs. H. J. Patterson; address M. E. Walsh; address Joseph D. Brooks; address Rev. J. T. Marsh; hymn choir, and benediction by Rev. Marsh. The building is two-stories high, 30 by 50 feet, and is constructed out of cement blocks which were made on the spot. It has a slate roof and is a first class building. It is equipped with a gas plant large enough to supply all the gas needed for lighting and is situated on the public highway a short distance from Medford station on the Western Maryland Railroad. Not so very long ago there was not a Granger's hall in this county, but now there are four, and several others contemplated. The Grange is growing rapidly and it will not be very many years before nearly every farmer of prominence will be a member of it. A good hall is one of the first things a subordinate gange should possess. Medford has its. Whose next?
