SIDE TWO

great disappointment in his peach crop. I take the liberty of asking for the privilege of continuing Mary's education without other remuneration than the pleasure it will give me to see her bright face daily and satisfy the thirst for knowledge which she has always manifested. Notwithstanding several unavoidable interruptions in her studies, she made good progress, especially in French; and the lessons of this coming year would be highly beneficial to her, without requiring as much effort as those of last year because she is better prepared to profit by them.

Sincerely hoping my request will be granted

I am cordially

thy friend,

M. A. Longstreth
