ATTACK PREMIER

SUFFRAGETTE THROWS MISSILE AT ASQUITH'S CARRIAGE DURING A PROCESSION.

TORCH APPLIED IN THEATRE

Aside From These Incidents Visit of Liberal Leader to Dublin Went Off Pleasantly—Cheered by Thousands in Night Parade Through Street.

London, July 20.—The visit of Mr. Asquith to Dublin, which is the first made by a British Premier since the act of Union, aroused the city on the Liffey to a pitch of extraordinary enthusiasm.

A clamorous mob tried to throw into the River Liffey a band of militant suffragist women that was seeking violent entrance to the Theatre Royal, where the British Prime Minister was delivering an address on Home Rule.

"Remember you are Irishmen," shouted the police to the crowd, which had seized the screaming and now thoroughly frightened women, who had come from London.

"Toss them in the river!" shouted the mob.

All the force of the police was required to stem the tide of violence and rescue the suffragists from those who were carrying them toward the water. Finally, after a desperate struggle, the police got the women out of the hands of the throng and enabled them to take refuge in street cars and in the lobby of the general post-office.

Dublin, July 19.—Premier Asquith with his wife, and escorted by the most notable members of the Irish party, came here on a visit and in spite of all precautions by the police the militant suffragettes went to extremes in endangering the lives of the visitors.

The Irish parliamentarians have said repeatedly the work of the English suffragettes would not be tolerated in the Emerald Isles, yet a woman threw a hatchet at the carriage in which Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and John Redmond were riding and the Irish leader's face was covered with blood from a cut over the eye. Before that another woman who sat in a box at the Royal Theatre hurled a burning chair which had been saturated with kerosene, into the orchestra. The curtains of the box caught fire and for a moment it looked as though the audience would go into a panic.

Even before the premier's arrival at Ireland the militant ones had prepared for trouble. They hired boats and went outside Kingstown to create trouble for the prime minister, but the Irish police interfered and prevented them from doing harm.

Premier Asquith was enthusiastically received on his arrival. He was greeted by a procession of 1,000 men with torches led by a band of 40 pieces. The streets were crowded and the enthusiasm reached its climax when the marchers escorting the prime minister reached O'Conneil street. There the crowd broke into a sustained roar. Mr. Asquith stood up in his carriage and waved his handkerchief.

During the procession a heavy hatchet was thrown at the carriage occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Asquith and John Redmond. The axe was thrown by a young woman. Fortunately the missile was thrown with little force but it struck Mr. Redmond and inflicted a cut over his eye which bled freely.
