SIDE ONE

My dear Dr. Morris,

It is exactly as I expected. When cases like Mrs. B's come to the Hospital, "one year" is the least anyone will speak of. In a month or so, they begin to talk of a change and in another month it is made. "History repeats itself", so does hospital experience. Do you not suppose that if Mrs. B. goes home, in a single month, she will be exactly where she was, when she came to the Hospital? If she does not, her case will be exceptional, and exceptions are said to prove the rule. I have not a word more to say against the experiment, but some one else must assume the responsibility. Mrs B. is the proper person unquestionably.
