

A CHALLENGE

We challenge comparison. Compare our lumber and our prices with the lumber and prices of others. Then you will see why it is that so many of the careful, shrewd builders buy of us. They have found that we carry the grades they want, and sell them at very moderate cost. Let us serve you also.

Overland

A Foreword About 1913

And a Word of Advice to the Buyer

Most of you will remember that just before the 1912 season opened, we advised the public to wait and see what we had to offer before they bought.

We promised to save them considerable money. We told them how we could. And we did. Everyone knows that we made good on this. Tens of thousands followed our advice and profited by doing so. Our famous $900 Touring Car took the country by storm. It proved the equal of any $1200 car shown during the entire 1912 season. To date we have had to refuse thousands of orders for this model and more are still pouring in.

Our advice for 1913 is the same as it was for 1912. Wait for the Overland announcement.

We will make our 1913 announcement on August 17th. On this date the world at large will awaken to still more car for still less money.

A few week's w it cannot make much difference to you; yet it will make a big difference by saving you considerable money.

On August 17th you will get all the facts, specifications and particulars. Buy The Saturday Evening Post on that date. Watch the newspapers in your city.

On that date the new Overlands will be in every city in America—ready for your demonstration.

August 17th will be the red letter day of the 1913 automobile year.

Remember the date and . . . . . wait!

DOINGS AT THE OPERA

By G. S. PHILLIPS.

Miss Pearlie Fattershall yawned languidly over her noon sandwiches. "Have you been to the op'ra?" she inquired of the stenographer from across the hall.

"Oh, yes," assented that young person, in accents of withering scorn. "I've been to the op'ra, and I wore my $500 Paris gown and my Russian sables and the diamond tarara I had such a time getting through the customs house, and I went in my new $10,000 limousine, too!"

"Wake up!" commanded Miss Fattershall. "They'll let you in for less than that! I went the other night myself, and, really there's just as much fresh air up in the clouds as down in the parquet. The view was grand. I could look down into most of the boxes and see what our very best people were wearing. In some cases it did not take long.

"There was one woman with a white feather duster eighteen inches long, stuck in her hair, who fascinated me. Did she have a hole cut in the roof of her automobile, or did she sit on its floor while she was coming, or did she stick her head out of the window all the way, as though she was going to yell for the police?

"I noticed that most of the women had feather dusters of some sort or other, more or less, fastened to their coiffures," Miss Fattershall went on, "and that must have been why the men were eternally leaving the boxes. I suppose they stood it as long as they could and then they had to retire to the lobby to sneeze. I should think each of them would slip a pair of scissors into his vest pocket and snip off those feathers when they became troublesome. No matter where the men sat or how they stretched their necks, those aigrettes always struck them right across the nose.

"One young man kept stretching his neck to get above the bird of paradise that was tickling his countenance, until I became alarmed for fear his neck would give way under the strain. But even from a distance I could tell that he would endure far worse for the sake of showing the crowd that he was in Mrs. Bang-Swinger's box.

"The young ones are dreadfully funny! It oozes out all over them that they are tickled to pieces to demonstrate their social progress. They seem to be thinking; 'Two years ago in the balcony, last year in the parquet and now here I am in a box—hooray!' Bless their little hearts!

"I saw my boss' son and heir, William Fare-you-well Pye, in one of the boxes. He was trailing a slim young person who looked like a pink snake from where I sat. Unless William has sworn off since he drifted away from the mahogany desk father put in here at the office for him, a pink snake in his line of vision makes him feel right at home. Yet she seemed real flattered at having him act as though he had never laid eyes on a pretty girl before.

"I got kind of mixed on the op'ra itself. You see, I had read the libretto carefully, so I'd know what to expect, and it certainly sounded exciting. There was the duel between the rivals, for instance, with Lady Leonora falling senseless at the furious clash of steel by the two who hated each other desperately. At least, that's what the libretto led me to expect. What happened was that after the basso had politely waited for the tenor to finish his warbling about how he was going to slash him to mincemeat the two crossed their swords in the air as though preparing for the chorus to walk under in a procession, and Leonora brushed a fly off her ear and gazed into the wings while the curtain fell.

"Then," proceeded Miss Fattershall, "when the rivals are trying to abduct Leonora from the convent the libretto told how distracted she was and how she finally yields to the troubadour who carries her off triumphantly. Well, I wish you could have seen her toddle meekly off after him, as though she was going to buy a spool of thread, and merely wondered who could be the good looking gentleman in front of her.

"But say! When they come in and tell the troubadour that his mother is being burned alive at the stake, I wish you could have seen the way that man threw his arms gracefully to heaven and struck attitudes and tried his voice in different keys and warbled arias to Leonora. It was, to my mind, a mighty poor imitation of man rushing to the rescue of his poor old parent.

"I'll bet he found only about a thimbleful of ashes when he got there! And—"

"But," interrupted the stenographer from across the hall, "how about the music? Wasn't there any music at the op'ra?"

"Oh, yes," said Miss Fattershall, hastily. "I forgot that. The music was perfectly grand, believe me!"—Chicago Daily News.

Worth Considering.

"I wish," she said, "that I could form a society of some kind."

"Why?" he asked.

"I'm tired being a nobody. When one forms a society one gets written about and talked about and gains public attention."

"Why don't you form a Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Husbands at Christmas Time? If you desire to be a benefactress I don't know of any better way in which you could benefact."

Rogers—When he first realized that he didn't amount to anything.—Life.

POULTRY

POULTRY HOUSE ABOUT RIGHT

Building Described and Illustrated That Is Well Arranged to Admit Plenty Sunlight.

I have a poultry house I think is about right. It is 12 by 16 feet, and will house 75 birds with ease, writes Mrs. R. B. Hammerli in the Farmers Mail and Breeze. It is four feet high on the north and six feet on the south. The roof has a nine-foot slope on the north and a five-foot slope on the south. Studding were set every two feet and drop siding was used to board up the walls. The roof is shingled. There are four windows on the south each with a double sash 22 by 28 inches in size and arranged so the top ones may be lowered. We did not want the open front style as we wanted it tight for fumigating and also to keep out beating storms. The upper sash are lowered most of the time, and during cold weather we have a muslin curtain to lower over the opening. Roosts are hinged to the north side and may be raised and fastened to the ceiling where they are out of the way for cleaning, etc. A good dropping board below keeps the floor in good condition. Nests are placed along the east and west sides. This house has a good cement floor which keeps out rats.

This house admits plenty of sunlight and we have not had a frozen comb or sick chicken all winter.

CARE OF DUCKS IN WINTER

Any Kind of Green Stuff That Happens to Be Handy Makes Excellent Feed for Fowls.

During winter I feed my ducks any green stuff that I happen to have handy. Turnip, parsnip and carrot tops, cabbage leaves, beet leaves, onion tops, purslane, pigweed, tender crab grass, lettuce, radish, mustard, cut fine, all make good bulky feed.

These are dried in the shade during the summer and stored like hay. When I want to feed them a quantity is boiled for twelve hours and mixed with finely cut roots, such as potato, turnip, parsnip, carrot, onion and beet. Apples are also used, says a writer in the Orange Judd Farmer. These are all cooked.

Not much of one kind of plant is given at a time. Four measures of any one with four of corn chop to each of wheat bran, red wheat shorts and boiled fresh meat are fed as a mash—all the ducks will eat it up clean in a few minutes. If any of the mash is left, it is at once removed to avoid its getting sour. This feed is given twice daily during the winter and three times in spring. It has always proved satisfactory.

POULTRY NOTES

Clean soiled eggs.

Get a reputation for selling fresh eggs.

Do not keep eggs in a cellar or damp place.

Let the old roosters go before they eat their heads off.

About ten ducks are required to make a pound of feathers.

If chicken keeping doesn't pay don't be in too big a hurry to blame the chickens.

Goose feathers being more oily are apt to sooner turn rancid than chicken feathers.

Crude carbolic acid and coal oil make a fine disinfectant. Use a continuous sprayer.

A sovereign remedy for limberneck is four drops of turpentine in a teaspoonful of water.

Charcoal is a wonderful tonic at this time. See that the fowls get all they want of it to eat.

Poultry breeders need to know as much of the breeding worth of a fowl as cattle breeders of a bull.

The man with a fine lot of young chickens to sell, now is the one who has a smile that won't come off.

One sick chicken soon infects a whole flock. It is always safest to remove a bird at first signs of illness.

The essentials of poultry raising are cleanliness and close attention, coupled with hard work and common sense.

Supply hens with plenty of crushed oyster shell. The shells costs little and means much if it's winter eggs you are working for.

The hens relish green food of some sort and will amply repay you for the trouble of chopping up cabbage, potato peelings, turnips, etc.

Any egg eaters in the flock? Make the nests as dark as possible; that will help. If that doesn't discourage the culprit, sharpen up the ax.

In the long continuous poultry building it is desirable that an alley way be provided for the sake of convenience in passing through the building.

"The hired man fell off the fence down in the meadow lot just now!"

"Had he hit the ground when you left?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

UNION MILLS

The old ground hog saw his shadow good and proper at noon on the 2nd inst., and we can now look for six weeks of severe weather which, it seems has started in on time. If his majesty proves to be a good prophet, the owners of ice houses will even call his name blessed.

Beginning on the 6 inst., the Union Mills Lodge, I. O. M., will hold an oyster supper and bazaar several evenings of this and next week. On Saturday evening, February, 8, music will be furnished by the Littlestown band.

Rev. Dr. F. T. Tagg, of Baltimore, visited his brother and sisters, in the old home at Union Mills, on Saturday and Sunday last.

Mr. Louis E. Shriver, spent several days last week visiting relatives in Hanover and Lancaster, Pa.

For the Sentinel.

POUND PARTY AND DANCE

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Beasman, near Eldersburg, was the scene of a pretty dance Thursday evening, January 30th. The guests began to arrive about 7 o'clock. Music was furnished by Messrs Levi Gamber and Snyder Arnold. Refreshments were served about 11.30 o'clock. All departed for their homes expressing themselves as having spent a very pleasant evening.

Those present were: Messrs and Mesdames William Beasman, George Beasman Irving Ruby, Blair Jones, Alfred Linton and Mr. and Mrs. Zahn Mrs. Brown; Misses Helen Zahn, Ethel Beasman, Emma Dobson, Effie Duvall, Grace Harding, Mary Duvall, Emily Beasman, Marie Lindsay, Eliza Murphy, Mary Gorsuch, Annie Merryman, Treva Ward, Lydia Gamber, Ada Glover, Beulah Duvall, Lydia Ward, Louisa Jones, Lula Brown, Sadie Brown, Katie Edmondson, Blanche Glover and Bessie Brown and Messrs Frank Bennett, James Lockard Jr., Clarence Beasman, Thos. Sore Throat Wisdom

If every mother could realize the danger that lurks behind every case of sore throat, she wouldn't rest until she had effected a cure every time a child has it.

Your family physician will verify the statement that it is a positive fact that every child with sore throat is in immediate danger of contracting Croup, Quinsy, Tonsilitis or Diphtheria, and is not removed from that danger until the throat is cured. Think of it!

Liniments or outward application of medicines do not and cannot cure the ailment, though they may offer temporary relief. Neither can you cure sore throat with a cough syrup or a cold cure.

To cure, you must get at the seat of the disease, removing the cause. Nothing does that so quickly, safely and surely as TONSILINE. A single dose of TONSILINE taken upon the first appearance of sore throat may save long weeks of sickness, great expense, worry, even death. TONSILINE is the stitch in time.

Use a little sore throat wisdom and buy a bottle of TONSILINE today. You may need it tomorrow.

TONSILINE is the standard sore throat remedy—best known and most effective and most used. Look for the long necked fellow on the bottle when you go to the drug store to get it. 25 cents and 50 cents. Hospital Size $1.00. All Druggists.

TO MAKE GOOD WIVES

A bill passed by the Senate is intended partly to encourage and educate young women to become good housewives. The bill, which was a substitute for the Lever measure, carries $12,000,000 for distribution among agricultural and vocational schools in the States which are now receiving Federal aid.

The bill provides for the teaching of "home economics" in the vocational schools. It passed by a vote of 31 to 30.

Three million dollars is appropriated annually for the maintenance of instruction in agriculture, the trades and industries and home economics, the allotment to be made to the States in proportion to their population.

For the maintenance of instruction in trades, industries and home economics, the allotment to be made to the States in proportion to their population.

For the maintenance of instruction in trades, industries and home economics in separate industrial and home economics schools and appropriation of $3,000,000 is made, to be apportioned to population engaged in trades and transportation and in manufacturing and mechanical pursuits as shown by the Federal census.

A similar sum is appropriated for instruction in these branches in agricultural high schools.

Although the vote on the entire bill was very narrow, the Senate almost was unanimous in favor of the feature which extends Federal aid for the first time to vocational schools.

IN BEST OF HUMOR

"Your father called me a timber wolf. What did he mean by that?"

"Oh that's just one of pa's political expressions. He used to live out West you know, and nothing ever pleased him so much as to shoot a timber wolf before breakfast. Of course, he didn't mean anything by it."—Cleve-Plain Dealer.

"Say, Pa, what is the difference between a visit and a visitation?"

Fond Parent—A visit, my boy, is when you go to see your grandmother Jones, and a visitation is when your Grandmother Jones comes to see us.—New York Times.

"Have you a striking idea for your novel?"

"I should say so," replied the busy author. "We've got up a cover design that will make everything else on the news stand look like a bunch of withered turnip tops by comparison." Detroit Free Press.
