Overland

A Foreword About 1913

And a Word of Advice to the Buyer

Most of you will remember that just before the 1912 season opened, we advised the public to wait and see what we had to offer before they bought.

We promised to save them considerable money. We told them how we could. And we did. Everyone knows that we made good on this. Tens of thousands followed our advice and profited by doing so. Our famous $900 Touring Car took the country by storm. It proved the equal of any $1200 car shown during the entire 1912 season. To date we have had to refuse thousands of orders for this model and more are still pouring in.

Our advice for 1913 is the same as it was for 1912. Wait for the Overland announcement.

We will make our 1913 announcement on August 17th. On this date the world at large will awaken to still more car for still less money.

A few week's w it cannot make much difference to you; yet it will make a big difference by saving you considerable money.

On August 17th you will get all the facts, specifications and particulars. Buy The Saturday Evening Post on that date. Watch the newspapers in your city.

On that date the new Overlands will be in every city in America—ready for your demonstration.

August 17th will be the red letter day of the 1913 automobile year.

Remember the date and . . . . . wait!

In a rear end collision on the Western Maryland Railroad Saturday night, twelve persons on the Hanover accommodation train were injured, four of them severely but not seriously.—The others did not require the immediate attention of a physician. Dr. Joseph T. Hering, returning to Baltimore from a visit to this city, was on a train which reached the scene shortly after the collision and gave his professional attention to the injured. The four who were hurt severely were taken to Baltimore and attended by Dr. Dunott, the company's physician. The Hanover train which was running behind time, was backing up to McDonogh Station when the engine of a freight train, scheduled to run 10 minutes behind the passenger train's time, plunged into the rear car of the latter, which telescoped the smoker in front of it. The pilot of the fright engine was demolished.

The said real estate descended unto said Intestate's surviving brothers and sisters as tenants in common.

That said intestate left surviving him, a brother, Lemuel Phillips, a sister, Annie E. Stevens, a sister, Sarah J. Meddleton, a brother, John Phillips, all of whom reside in the State of Maryland. FOR EXCLUSIVE MILK TRAIN

W. M. Grants Relief to Shippers and Passengers

As the result of a conference held yesterday afternoon in the offices of A. R. Merrick, general superintendent of the Western Maryland Railroad, and attended by all of the milk shippers along the line of the road between Thurmont, Hanover and Baltimore, and all of the milk dealers in Baltimore supplied by these men, announcement was made that a milk train would be operated by the Western Maryland between these points and Baltimore.

This marks an innovation, as there is no railroad running into Baltimore operating a train which carries nothing but milk. The meeting was called by General Superintendent of the Eastern Division of the road, and F. M. Howe, general passenger agent. The action was taken as a result of numerous complaints received by officials of the road from both passengers and milk dealers, of the city. The new milk train will be put into service on March 15.

The road up to the present time has been operating three trains daily between the above named points, all of which carried milk and as a considerable amount of time was involved in loading the milk at the way stations the trains were often delayed and considerable dissatisfaction expressed by customers. Moreover, the milk dealers of the city complained that as it took three trains to bring their supply of milk to the station for the daily supply when one should have been sufficient.

The new train will stop at all of the way stations and arrive in Baltimore at about 9 o'clock.

The rumor that the Western Maryland was contemplating the construction of an eight-story office building at Hagerstown to accommodate a part of the working force of the road in Baltimore and other points along the line was denied at the offices of the company, as was also the rumor that the road was contemplating electrifying that portion of its line between York and Porters, Pa.

POULTRY

POULTRY RELISH SKIM MILK

One of Very Best of Foods for Growing Chicks, Keeping Digestion in Good Order.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.)

Very few people understand the value of skim milk as a food for poultry. They relish it and it is very good for them, either sweet or sour or buttermilk, if it is not too cold.

Milk takes the place of meat scraps to a certain extent. In fact, the feeding of meat can be put down one-fourth when the fowls have all the skim milk they can drink, and the results obtained will be the same. Milk is fine to feed laying hens and will materially increase the egg yield.

It is one of the very best of foods for the growing chicks, keeping their digestion in good order and hastening their growth, as it contains the elements necessary for their development.

Where milk is fed regularly and a teaspoonful each of ginger and soda added to each gallon every third or fourth day, there will be no cholera or other bowel troubles. Stir the mixture until thoroughly dissolved before feeding. This is very easily prepared and will keep their digestive organs toned and sweetened.

When fattening fowls, skim milk should be used to mix the mash. They like it better and in this way are induced to eat just as much more, as the milk while serving as moisture to wet the mash is also a hearty food.

The food for young ducks should be mixed with milk and curds made from sour milk are indispensible for young turkeys.

Remember that milk will not take the place of water, as it so soon turns to solid food in the crop. Keep water before the chickens the same as ever, no matter how much milk they may have.

On every farm there is more or less milk for feeding and it will pay to see that the chickens get their share of it.

SPROUTED GRAIN FOR FOWLS

Green Food May Also Be Supplied in Form of Any Surplus Supply of Vegetables on Hand.

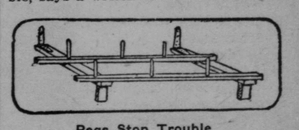

Where it is possible a winter crop should be planted to furnish green food for the fowls. It does not take a large area to furnish green food for the fowls, and usually plenty of space may be found for this purpose. But where one has only a city lot, and a green crop is out of the question, arrangements should be made to sprout oats, rye, wheat or barley. If no other space is available a box of soil will suffice. The box may be filled with rich garden loam if the seeds are to remain long enough for the plants to grow. If the grain is to be fed as soon as the seed sprouts a box of sand is sufficient. The box may be set in a cellar or in the kitchen near the stove in very cold weather.

Green food may also be supplied in the form of any surplus vegetables that you may happen to have on hand. The best plan for feeding them is to place a nail in the houses on the wall just high enough so that the hens will be compelled to jump a little to reach it. Then take a beet or any other vegetables that you desire to feed and stick them on the nails. It is a handy little arrangement, and compels the fowls to exercise for their food.

PREVENT CROWDING ROOSTS

Difficulty Encountered Where Many Birds Are Kept Together Is Handily Eliminated.

When a great many chickens are roosting together the tendency is to crowd until a part of the fowls are pushed off the roosts. Roosts made as illustrated will guard against this trouble, says a writer in the Missouri Valley Farmer. Bore holes in roosts about three feet apart and drive in upright pieces 12 inches high and about the size of a broom handle. It is well to have a dropping board beneath.

Pegs Stop Trouble.

"Fresh Egg" Defined.

An egg to belong to the strictly fresh egg class, should not be over 3 days old in summer weather, and a week old during the winter. But in either case they must be kept in a cool temperature. Heat very quickly stales eggs. Crates of eggs allowed to remain in the hot sun for several hours will quickly change their condition.

Turkeys for Market.

The hen turkeys sell first, and medium-sized carcasses sell best in market. The market turkey should be shorter in legs and neck than is ordinarily the case, and very full in the breast, with a compact body, meaty and fat, rather than of a large size and coarse structure.
