Democratic Hard Times.

From the Baltimore American.

Washington, February 22.—Republicans in the House yesterday paid bitter respects to the Democratic commission on industrial relations and to what they said was Democratic hard times.

Leading the gloomy procession were Minority leader Mann, Representative Humphreys, of Washington state; Representative Madden, of Illinois, and Representative Garner, of Texas.

Their attack opened with a protest against the appropriation of $50,000 for carrying on investigations by the commission. "Why that commission is doing nothing but looking wise and not succeeding in that," said Madden. "It was their duty to investigate the strike in Calumet and Colorado, but they didn't do it. If they've nothing to do but spend the people's money, they'd better disband."

Mr. Mann ridiculed the commission for its newspaper "handout" admitting vast unemployment.

"But our Democratic friends see that without a blush and say it isn't so," he declared. Then he injected letters from Chicago, Buffalo to show bad conditions in business.

Mr. Garner's fling consisted in the statement that "the commission is doing no good except to get out documents to aid the Republican party."

Railroads Show Loss.

Washington, Feb. 22.—The gap between railroad expenses and railroad revenues which has been growing closer and closer during the last six or eight months, showed no improvement during the month of December, according to a bulletin of "revenues and expenses of steam roads" issued by the Inter-State Commerce Commission.

This bulletin makes it clear the railroad receipts are gradually slipping nearer the railroad expenses. It was believed that in December operating revenues would show up better in comparison with the same month of 1912, but they have failed to do so.

This condition of revenues and expenses of the steam roads strengthens the case of the Eastern lines which are asking for an increase in rates so that they may be able to make urgent extensions and improvements to handle the freight traffic and to put the finances of the lines on a stronger basis.

LOSS IN EAST $125 A MILE

The net operating revenue of the Eastern railroads for the month of Dicember, 1913, compared to the same period of 1912, shows a decrease of $125 a mile. In December, 1913, the revenue per mile was $400, against $525 for the same month the year before. The total operating revenue for December, 1913, was $1,834 a mile, against $1,927 for December, 1912. The total operating expense a mile for December, 1913, was $1,833, against $1,402 in 1912.

These figures show an increase in expenses and decrease in revenues months of last year. In December, as compared with the corresponding 1913, the total operating revenue for the Eastern lines was $107,343,391, against $112,323,168 for December, 1912. The total operating expense for December, 1913, was $83,915,440, against $81,726,219 for the same month in 1912.

SOUTHERN ROADS GAIN

The railroads in the Southern district are the only ones which show a more healthy condition. Their total operating revenues show an increase of more than $3,000,000 for December, 1913, over Decembtr, 1912, while the operating expenses for the corresponding period show an increase of only $1,000,000. The operating revenues of the Western lines for the same period show a big falling off, dropping from $106,600,000 to $97,000,000 when the last December is compared with the December of 1912. The expenses of the Western lines also showed a decrease in operating expenses of $2,000,000, indicating the Western railroads are economizing to meet the depreciation in their revenues.

In the United States the total operating revenue dropped $11,500,000 when last December is compared with December, 1912. The total operating expenses increased only $2,000,00 during last December.

The railroads submit every month statements of their revenues and expenses to the Inter- State Commerce Commission. The commission, in giving out these figures, does not vouch for their accuracy, but they have uniformly shown during the last eight months that the expenses are increasing, while the revenues are not picking up.

GAMBER

Snow fell on the 23rd inst., and the weather on the morning of the 24th was very cold. Thanks to our two mail carriers both of them came through on Tuesday morning.

A. G. FUSS COMMITS SUICIDE

Albertus G. Fuss, whose indictment for alleged criminally libeling Judges Keedy, of Hagerstown, and Henderson, of Cumberland, has heretofore been noted, committed suicide at the home of his mother, at the Fuss homestead, near Williamsport, on Tuesday, by firing a bullet from a revolver into his brain. Mr. Fuss became widely known in this county, several years ago, while canvassing for personal and business sketches of a publication which was issued as a supplement to the Advocate. Those who then came to know him well will not be greatly surprised by this ending of his career. He was an intelligent man and wrote the sketches which appeared in the publication referred to in a sprightly and readable manner, but he was then brooding constantly over the wrongs which he conceived he and his father were suffering through decisions of the Washington county court. He constantly averred, to those to whom he related the story of the proceedings in those cases, that the action of the court was partial and unfair and taken from improper motives. He could see but one side of the controversies and imagined that all who did not agree with him were unjustly prejudiced against them. His recent publication of the article for which he was indicted would indicate that this state of his mind had been intensified by continued brooding over fancied wrongs until he entirely lost his mental equilibrium. So many persons knew him in this county that the following account of his suicide, from the Hagerstown correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, may be of interest to readers of the Sentinel:

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 24.—Alburtis G. Fuss, who was indicted by the February grand jury on the charge of criminally libeling Associate Judges Martin L. Keedy, of Hagerstown, and Robert R. Henderson, of Cumberland, committed suicide this afternoon by sending a bullet into his brain at the home of his mother, with whom he lived, on the old Fuss homestead, near Williamsport.

Just before he shot himself his mother called to him to come to dinner. Fuss, who was upstairs, replied: "Just a minute, mother."

A few moments later the crack of a revolver was heard. His sister, Miss Mabel Fuss, who was across the road, heard the report and, running into the house and upstairs, she found her brother lying on the floor, the revolver by his side. A stream of blood flowed from a bullet wound in the back part of his head.

Miss Fuss screamed, bringing other members of the family to the room. Robert Harsh, a neighbor, was one of the first to reach the dying man.

A messenger was dispatched for a physician. Dr. J. Walter Layman, of Williamsport, motored to the home, but when he reached Fuss' side he was dead. He found the bullet had pierced the brain.

Justice Rickard, of Williamsport, acting coroner, made an investigation and decided an inquest was not necessary.

Beside Fuss' body was a farewell note addressed to his brother, Allen Fuss, of Waynesboro, Pa. The note read:

"Dear Allen: I hope you will forgive me for this terrible act. My nerves are shattered and I must get relief. I cannot stand this strain any longer. I have been deceived in many ways. Do what you can for those who are left."

Fuss is survived by his mother, one sister, Miss Mabel Fuss, of Kemp's Mills, and two brothers, Allen Fuss, of Waynesboro, Pa., and W. Harry Fuss, a jeweler, of Williamsport.

The indictment against him grew out of articles criticising Judges Keedy and Henderson, published in the Spirit of Justice, a paper that he published only once. About six years ago he sued eight members of Medairy Lodge of Masons, of Williamsport, for $10,000 damages, but the case never came to trial.

UNION MILLS

The thermometer registered 13 below zero, at Union Mills, on the morning of the 25th inst., the ground hog told no lie, this year.

Rev. S. Charles Hoover, Rev. J. Luther Hoffman, Geo. W. Yeiser, Arthur W. Feeser, Harvey S. Morelock and Albert J. Bemiller, of this (Myers) district, accompanied the Carroll county local option delegation to Annapolis, on the 24th inst., Mr. Yeiser was one of the speakers who presented the cause before the State legislature.

The barn of Charles Barnhart, who resides near the hall of the Carroll County Reed Band, four miles northeast of this place, with most of its contents, was destroyed by fire about 8 o'clock on Sunday evening last. Mr. Barnhart and his family had gone away from home to pay a visit and didn't get back again before the flames had completed their work of destruction. The fire was discovered by his neighbors who saved what property they could. Mr. B. was driving his two mules which of course were saved and of the two horses that remained at home, one was lost and the other one was so badly burned that it is thought it will die.

On the afternoon of the 20th inst., the pupils of Humberts school, Miss Mary Copenhaver, teacher, enjoyed a jolly sled ride through Union Mills to Mt. Pleasant and return. They called on the schools at both of the last named places where they received a warm welcome. Harry Strevig, Claude Lawyer and Charles Feeser were the farmers who kindly furnished the team for the trip. Our school expects to return the call at an early date.

Miss Gertrude M. Cogan, Field secretary of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the General Synod of the Reformed Church, will make an address at the missionary service to be held at St. Mary's Reformed Church, Silver Run, March 1.

Mr. T. H. Shriver and family have closed their house, here, and are spending sometime with Mr. Shriver's son-in-law, Robert S. Shriver, of Baltimore.

Mr. Calvin E. Bankert is confined to bed with a bad cold.

The Knights of the Mystic Chain, of Silver Run, enjoyed a banquet at their hall, on the evening of the 25th inst.

It is believed the 300th anniversary celebration of the Landing of the Pilgrims will be well attended, particularly if a good series of baseball games is provided.
