1879 January - March Casper Morris Incoming Letters F994

SIDE TWO

before my eyes causes such a familiarity with them as to take away their virtue. I hope I do not shock you.

I often think of Mr Williams and am glad to know that he is enjoying your kind visit. He is truly a good man and has passed a most useful life. I presume he must be in the City. If you can, pray convey to him my affectionate sympathy and remember me to Al and Mr Biddle.

I write you this hurried letter that you may know that you and your dear Wife are borne in constant and affectionate remembrance

Sincerely
Jno. Welsh
