n.d. Caspar Morris incoming letters A - Betts glad to hear of you through your letter to me - he says all the indebtedness is on the side of his family as regards yours. It is very sweet to remember friends afar off in this world - before the throne of grace, where we are brought so near together in spirit - in Christ Jesus. Indeed I won't forget what you say about this - my husband & I shall the privilege of attending the Brighton Conference - it seemed to me - we are much grieved at Mr Smith's illness & the necessity for his return to America. It is wonderful what God has done for our country among the Friars by his & Mr Smith's means, & among the unconverted by means of Moody & Sankey. One cannot help thinking all these movements are ushering in the Lord's coming for His people - you speak of the blessedness & the necessity of abiding in Christ - how I do praise God for showing me that this is not hard & difficult task - but just trusting Him implicitly who has died for me & is the way, Life & Rest.
