n.d. Caspar Morris incoming letters A - Betts from you at any time. His affection for you is very great, & I scarcely ever remember to have seen him so much disappointed about anything, as he was, not to see more of you on your last visit to England. He has as usual, passed the winter in Jersey; during a short visit in the late autumn to the seaside, he was very ill - but is at present pretty well. No doubt you know something of his family trials & anxieties - but his mind is always directed toward the Saviour - & that he is always an example of cheerfulness & patience

I fear he suffers more physical pain & uneasiness than any one is aware of - Hope you will write to him soon again. I shall be very glad to tell you of his welfare from time to time. It has pleased God to call my husband to the management of some large iron works & collieries here, so our home is for the present very distant from my dear parents. We are all well, & since I saw you, the Lord has brought me much accord to himself - & made my life brighter than I had ever hoped for in this world, so that wherever we are, I am happy - rejoicing in the Lord & His wonderful goodness
