n.d. Caspar Morris incoming letters A - Betts

In the seven so short since you saw her looking quite the child. I am glad she is the home when I leave, as she is so bright & merry & a dear good girl. You may not have heard how many of the young people who were on the Nile have been or are intending to marry. Miss Campbell, who had to return to Cairo with her mother, is now Mrs Feld & Gilder. Mr. W. being also married. & now a fortnight since we had the announcement of Mr. Willie Campbell's engagement with Miss Richardson, the daughter of the Mr & Mrs Richardson we all knew on board the "Lucas". Mrs Richardson has spent the winter again at her home at Cannes, but does not seem very strong. I heard from her last week, & they intend returning for the wedding in June. This is to take place in London. How dear S. Morris may I hope for one of your kind letters. We are so welcome, though I certainly do not deserve it. But please forgive me for my silence, & now I forgive you by telling me how you & dear Mr Morris have been this winter. For it is a real pleasure to have tidings. Mama joins with me in asking you to remember us kindly to Mr Minor Morris & Mr & Mrs Wensar Morris. And with love for dear Mrs Morris & yourself,

Believe me
Dear Mr Morris
Ever Your grateful & affte
Alice Betts.
