My very dear Doctor,

I have been wishing so often my very dear Doctor, since we departed to tell you how we were loving and longing for you, but as often I have been deterred from doing so, by the thought that if every grateful patient were to do the same you will find little relaxation in your foreign tour.

Our very pleasant little letters, however, from Sally Lewis with their most welcome news of her meeting with you, make

Do not fail to let us know where to address
