"THE ADVENTURES OF A BOY SCOUT"

This moving picture, in five reels, will be presented at the Opera House, Friday, March 12th. Do not forget the date. It is presented under the auspices of the Westminster Boy Scouts and for their benefit.

These pictures were produced under the auspices of the National Council of Boy Scouts of America and carry the endorsement of President Wilson, Ex-President Roosevelt, Judge Ben Lindsey, Gifford Pinchot and many other prominent men. The story is a great drama of absorbing interest, stirring scenes and exciting incidents, and is a triumph of the motion picture art.

It tells the story of a boy of lowly birth and demoralizing environment who becomes a loyal, honest, brave and courteous young American through the moral influence of the Boy Scouts of America. Tom Slade was born and raised under home influences that make a boy a criminal. When first he comes in contact with the Boy Scout organization he looks upon its members with scorn, regarding them as "molly-coddles," and meets their friendly advances with defiance. Eventually he joins a troop and in camp near his home participates in all the activities of the Scouts in checking lawlessness, cultivating useful qualities, learning respect for his superiors, for himself, for his flag, for his country and the laws that govern it, and for the principles that underlie the Scout Movement. Through him the father, a man of abandoned life and lawless associates, is regenerated and becomes a useful member of society.

Through the picture is carried a wonderful dramatic story, with an obvious moral. The boys are seen in their camps, and the forty lads in neat uniforms enjoy their drills, their games of tournament, their contests of strength and skill, wireless practice, reading hours—both work and play. You see them going over a sixteen foot wall with nothing but their arms, legs and staves to climb with. There is a swimming scene, a rescue from the bay, stopping a runaway horse, scout aid to the wounded after an attempted burglary, the finding of men lost in the woods by tracking, and finally by good deeds inducing a wealthy man who figures in the story as their enemy at first, to experience a change of heart and present them with a Club House. Then the Chief Magistrate of the Nation, President Wilson, appears and reviews a detachment of Scouts on the White House Lawn.

We regret that this event conflicts with the supper which is to be served by the Civic League, but we had to take the pictures when we could get them. It is our hope that neither the League nor the Troop will lose by this conflict.

We regret also that the cost of producing this film is so great that we will be compelled to sell tickets for those over twelve years of age at twenty-five cents. Tickets for those under twelve will be for sale at fifteen cents.

Here is a splendid opportunity to learn the methods and results of one of the really great movements of the day, to enjoy the evening, and to help the Boy Scouts of Westminster. The performance will begin about 6.30 and will be repeated in about one and half hours. Come and bring your friends with you.

A BRIEF MEMOIR OF MRS. ANNIE SMELSER

The Sunday School of St. Paul's M. E. Church, New Windsor, Md., as well as every department of the church work, has not only been greatly bereaved in the death of Mrs. Annie Smelser, who fell asleep in Jesus, Sunday, February 21, 1915; but has sustained a loss, which, according to present human knowledge or foresight is irreparable.

The years of unusually devoted and efficient service to the Kingdom of God, as carried forward by the Church of her choice, make fitting this tribute to her memory.

Endowed by nature with gifts and graces that were unusual, with a cheerful spirit and a fervent zeal in every cause she espoused, hers was a life of splendid achievement.

Her natural resources she applied without stint to the work for which she was peculiarly fitted, and for which her love was unfeigned, until she became a "woman not to be ashamed."

Her eventful life being spent among the children and young people, led into scenes of toil and exacting tasks which only one such as she would welcome. These toils and tasks she met with the challenge of a heart that made light of them, as one who had the wisdom of conquest in her soul. But for this resolute and sanctified spirit exercised in love and hope by this rare soul, St. Paul's M. E. Church would not be what she is today.

"Instant in season and out of season" she never failed to see and grasp an opportunity to speak the word in season, whether it be to turn the attention of a child toward the Sunday School, heal some little wound that had been made by a careless jest, or a thoughtless act; or to soothe the sorrowing heart of one in distress or bereavement; or to bring into active existence some dormant good that had been slumbering in the heart of a neighbor; or woo to her master one who perchance had apparently been neglected.

Not alone Methodism, but the community at large, even that community lying beyond the corporate limits of New Windsor, is indebted to her for the inspiration of her life and teaching upon the many young lives touched and influenced by her spirit as well as by the quiet spread of that influence upon those of all ages.

Christianity, especially that form of it called Methodism, would be the poorer in New Windsor, but for this self-denying christian woman, and the high ministries rendered by her to the church without compensation, without even caring for special notice.

Such was sister Smelser's privilege and joy, and for years that lengthened into decades she rendered to her Master a service here on earth, such as will bring to her listening ear, the welcome plaudit, "Well done good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy God."

"Thou wilt not leave us in the dust;
Thou madest man, he knows not why;
He thinks he was not made to die;
And thou hast made him. Thou art just."

MEMOIR OF CHARLES W. OTTO

With solemn suddeness came the fatal stroke which terminated the mortal existence of our esteemed brother and co-laborer, C. W. Otto, on Wednesday night, February 24, 1915.

At his post, as usual, he was in attendance upon the prayer-meeting services, in the M. E. Church, New Windsor, at 7.30 P. M.

Hurrying home after prayer-meeting was over, with his little children, he quickly returned to the church to participate in a meeting of the trustees called to take some action on the death of Mrs. Annie Smelser.

Immediately upon being seated it was quite noticeable that he was ill, and his brethren hurried to his side to find him stricken with paralysis.

At once he was assisted to his home, where he gradually grew worse until 4 o'clock Thursday morning, when the voice unheard by mortal ears, said "It is enough, come up higher." His funeral service was held at St. Paul's M. E. Church, on Saturday, February 27, at 1.30 P. M. when a representative audience taxing the capacity of the church sat in solemn reverence musing upon the solemnity of death.

His death was not due to his own negligence. He was a cautious, careful man, scrupulously, that he might prolong his days beyond the usual number of other members of his family.

A great English poet has said:
"Tis a stern and startling thing to think
How often mortality stands upon the brink
Of its grave without any misgiving;
And yet in this slippery world of strife;
In the stir of human bustle so rife,
There are daily sounds to tell us that life
Is dying, and death is living."

Of his boyhood days but few facts are at hand save that which in importance outshines all else—at 12 years of age, led by the Divine Spirit, he gave his heart to God, and dedicated his life to the service of his Redeemer. How well that service was rendered is attested to by the recognition given him by the church of his choice.

He was superintendent of the Sunday school, and at the same time, teacher of the Men's Bible Class, a trustee of the church and secretary of that body; also he was a steward.

In all of these positions, not only was he faithful, but efficient.

He particularly excelled as a Sunday school shperintendent. It was there his enthusiasm was especially manifest. The result is he goes away leaving the school at high water mark, with the room crowded beyond the point of comfort and convenience.

His business relations were such that he could command much of his time, which he did in a way so as to "Redeem the time." He gave much time to the study of "the word," preparing himself to instruct his scholars in things Divine.

Of a naturally active and energetic nature, his time and abilities were of the little and temporary things, but the weightier and more important concerns of daily life—not frivolous nor unduly serious, but sensible and earnest in all things.

In early life he gave promise of ability, and was given an opportunity for a limited education, which he improved and fitted himself to teach school, which was his vocation for some years.

A constant reader of the best literature and a student of political and economic questions, kept him in touch with current affairs, so as to enable him to converse intelligently and instructively upon daily topics.

Those who are acquainted with his domestic life know his entire devotedness as an affectionate father and a loving and loyal husband, so that it was in the home sphere that his most endearing characteristics shone radiant as a star. Being a home maker and a home-lover for her who now mourns his loss, he made a happy life.

Their marriage was a union of hearts as well as of hands.

His chief delight was in the bosom of his family.

Between the father and the children there was a perfection of sympathy, the strongest personal attachment, the closest intimacy and affection. He was their dearest friend. No wonder his children loved him so.

God comfort that smitten household, where now the mother and children sit by the broken altars, no longer illumined by the glow of a father's cheerful, loving, happy spirit.

His last illness was brief; a few hours only confined to his bed, his heart refusing action, and then a quiet sinking into unconsciousness.

With Whittier let us say:
Not upon us or loved ones the solemn angel
Hath evil wrought,
The funeral anthem is a glad evangel
The good die not.
God calls our loved ones, but we lose not wholly
What he hath given.
They live on earth in thought and deed as truly
As in His heaven.

CIVIC LEAGUE MEETINGS, JANUARY AND FEBRUARY

A report of the January and February meetings of the Civic League of this city, was received by the Sentinel on Thursday evening of last week, and, with the press of other matter then in hand, could not be used. That was less to be regretted than it would have been if, without having had any notice that it would be sent, the Sentinel had commented editorially on the work the league is doing. It now follows the comments referred to by publishing the report of the meetings, which contains a full list of the appointments. The report is as follows:

The January and February meetings of the Civic League were held in the Assembly Hall of the High School, where all its meetings will take place in the future. This courtesy has been extended to the League by Mr. Kolb, the principal of the High School. It is hoped that through the League, the school and people may be brought closer together for their mutual benefit.

The membership of the Civic League numbers 168, of whom 75 were present at the January meeting, this being the largest attendance in the history of the organization.

A number of matters of importance were considered and officers for the year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Charles E. Stewart; vice-presidents from each church—1st vice-president, Mrs. Charles Billingslea, Methodist Protestant; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. James A. C. Bond, Protestant Episcopal; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. J. B. Boyle, Catholic; 4th vice-president, Mrs. Harry Ditman, Brethren; 5th vice-president, Miss Lillian Erb, Reformed; 6th vice-president, Miss Nora Gorsuch, Methodist Episcopal; 7th vice-president, Mrs. W. H. Hetrick, Lutheran; treasurer, Mrs. George Mather; secretary, Mrs. F. C. Miller; assistant secretary, Mrs. Frank Shaw.

The president called attention to the many fine sidewalks recently laid, and other improvements, particularly those around the jail, the Court House and High School.

Dr. Forlines, the Scout Master, came before the ladies with a plea for the boys, and based his remarks on a very interesting paper which he read, "The Parable of the Prodigal Father."

Mr. Kolb, the principal, welcomed the ladies in a very happy manner, he spoke of some of the needs of the school, and urged a closer sympathy and relationship between parents and school, suggesting that the League might assist in bringing this about. At the close of the meeting, the ladies visited the well equipped Domestic Science Department, and were introduced to Miss Troy, who is in charge of this work. Later the young ladies of the graduating class served tea, which all greatly enjoyed.

WINDIE HEIGHTS

Cheer up! Spring will soon be here once more, bringing with it warmer days and many pleasures.

Farmers of this place and vicinity have begun their spring ploughing.

Quite a little excitement was caused at this place on Sunday evening last when the home of Mr. Wm. Gibson took fire and in a few hours was burned to the ground. Fortunately some of the furniture was saved and Mr. Gibson and family are now living in the tenant house on the farm of Mr. Peter Miller. Fire is supposed to have started from the chimney.

Mrs. Albert Smith called on Mrs. Samuel Wilson on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Benjamin Wagner and Mrs. Chas. Grimes continue on the sick list though much improved.

Mrs. Willard Wilson spent Monday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Myerly.

Mr. Ray McQuay and family are moving to their farm near Eldersburg, recently purchased from Mr. Geo. A. Blizzard.

Mrs. Samuel Wilson, who had the misfortune of breaking her wrist, is improving.

Mrs. Chas. Kopp and daughter Eva spent Sunday with the former's mother, Mrs. Jordan.

Miss Ethel McQuay, of near Winfield, spent Wednesday at the home of her brother, Mr. and Mrs. Ray McQuay.

Mrs. Roy Poole called on Mrs. Samuel Wilson on Monday.

Mr. Howard Baire has finished sawing a barn frame for Mr. Ray Brown. Mr. Brown expects to build in the near future.

The Aid Society of Bethesda Church will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Albert Smith on Wednesday evening next.
