PURITY MEANS DURABILITY

Monarch Paint 100 per cent pure

Purity means Durability. Anyone who has painted knows that the labor costs more than the material. So where is the economy of putting cheap, worthless, inferior paint on a property when it will have to be painted twice as often and you will have no job while it is on as it affords poor protection against decay.

A great many people are fooled into buying paint from Mail Order Houses. Don't throw away your good money on such trash. Use white wash it is a great deal cheaper and will protect your property just as well and last as long.

Here is the point. Look into your Mail Order House Catalogue and read what it states about Paint. Does it state that it is composed of pure White Lead? Does it state that it is composed only of pure Linseed Oil? Does it state that it contains pure Turpentine Dryer? Does it state that it contains pure Zinc? Is it Guaranteed to be 100 per cent pure? NO IT DOES NOT.

You can just feel certain on this point. That any Paint you see advertised at a ridiculously low price, is composed of a low grade vegetable oil (Not Linseed Oil) whiting for white lead and barytes for zinc. On the can of this inferior you will see the instructions "DO NOT SMOKE AROUND THIS PAINT", that is because it has gasoline in it.

Investigate before you buy. Don't put your hard earned money in to an Inferior Grade Paint that has no Durability, that contains no Linseed Oil, that contains no White Lead, that cotains no Zinc, that contains only Gasoline for Dryer.

Buy Monarch Paint. Monarch Paint is Composed Only Of Pure White Lead, Pure Linseed Oil, Pure Zinc and Pure Turpentine Dryer, is 100 per cent pure and is sold subject to Chemical Analysis.

We also sell Pure Linseed Oil, Pure Spirits of Turpentine, Pure Japan Dryer, Lewis' Pure White Lead and in fact everything for Painting.

If you are in the market for Coach Paint, Wagon Paint, Colors in oil, Dry Paints, Varnishes, Varnish Stains, Floor Paint, Porch Paint, Flat Oil Wall Paint, Cold Water Paint or anything at all in this line we have it and a full stock of it too.

We Sell Coal Oil And Gasoline.

PORK PIE

The ability of the Democrats to resolve the demand for preparedness into an excuse for Congressional "pork" is a matter of wonder to anyone acquainted with their general incompetency. If all the Democratic bills which have been introduced in this Congress, providing for munitions plants to be located in various Democratic Congressional Districts were acted upon favorably, there wouldn't be enough money left in the Federal Treasury to pay for hauling the munitions away from the factories. When opportunity knocks at Democratic headquarters it is sandbagged and frisked to the skin.

Shortly after Mrs. Leatha Szcth, who lived at 2116 Herbert street, Baltimore, was buried Sunday afternoon her stepson, Edward J. Szcth, and Miss Mary E. Hook, daughter of Mrs. Mary E. Hook, 1948 West North avenue, were married by Rev. Foster U. Gift. The engagement had been announced before the death of the stepmother.

Mrs. Szcth, who was 54 years old, was a member of the Salvation Army. She died Friday of pneumonia. She was born at New Windsor this county, and had been married three times. Her first husband was Charles Bigum, who died nine years ago; her second was William Taylor, who died five years ago, and her last husband, Michael Szcth, survvives her. She leaves 11 children by her first husband. The funeral was attended by a large delegation from the Salvation Army under the direction of Captain Young.

OTHER SIDE OF THE WALL

By KEITH KENYON.

Miss Witherow had come of one of those very old southern families reduced by the war, and it was natural for her to look down upon anybody born north of the Mason and Dixon line. Add to that a difference of opinion about a proposition in plane geometry and you have—or rather Miss Witherow had, or thought she had—two very good reasons why she should consider Professor Warrencourt entirely beneath her notice.

In spite of his dignified title, the professor was not old, not even middle aged, and he was very good looking. Also, he was very much in love with Miss Witherow, in spite of the fact that she gave him no opportunity to show it.

He lived in a quiet little brick house. Right next door, in another tin-soldier house, lived Cora Witherow.

Charles had never been inside of Cora's house, much as he coveted an invitation to spend an autumn evening in the little parlor next door.

November passed, and a wonderful snowy December. January had not improved conditions, and finally February first stared at Charles from his desk calendar one morning and he realized that a third of a year had passed since he had had a friendly word with the pretty teacher.

He was becoming taciturn and intolerant with his classes and was being dubbed a crank.

Cora Witherow carried her head higher than ever and went her way. But one night her head ached and she went to bed wretched. Finally she fell asleep. In the night she woke up. Somewhere near a baby was crying, and as masculine voice was singing "Solomon Levi" as hard as it could.

She listened. Never before had she known that the partition between the two houses was so thin, for the crying and singing were right on the other side of the wall and distinct enough to be in her own house. She was puzzled. A baby at the professor's! What did that mean?

Then the singing stopped, but the yelling continued. All at once her telephone rang downstairs. She slipped out of bed, threw on a kimono and went down. It was the professor's voice that answered her tremulous "Hello!"

"Is that you, Miss Witherow?"

"Yes."

"This is Charles Warrencourt, I—I'm in trouble. Do you think you could come over?"

"Why—I don't know, professor. What is the matter?"

"Can't you hear? Don't you hear that baby yelling upstairs? I think it's dying. For heaven's sake do come quick!"

A baby! And he said dying. There was only one thing for it—she must go. She flew to her room and got into some clothes and in an incredibly short time was in the house next door. Charles, in dressing gown and slippers, came downstairs with his screaming burden, and dumped it into Cora's arms with a sob of relief. "For heaven's sake, what's wrong with it?"

Cora gathered the little mite up close to her breast and started to walk. "I don't know! Where is Maggie?"

"Gone!"

"You see," Charles was trying to explain, "it belongs to Maggie's niece, who's sick. Maggie brought it here yesterday to keep it for a day or two, and at midnight they telephoned for her to come in a hurry. The mother was worse, pneumonia or something. Maggie just dumped the baby into my bed and said she'd be back soon. I can't get my doctor, either, he's out, and I thought of you. Great guns!"

The baby was shrieking as with agony.

"Maybe it's a pin!" said Cora "If you light the fire in the parlor, I'll investigate." But no pin was found, and Cora renewed her procession up and down—Charles keeping frantic steps at her side.

Suddenly Cora stopped. "Have you fed him?"

Charles looked astonished. "Fed him? No!"

"They eat, you know," suggested Cora with gentle sarcasm.

"That's right! But what? I had a pup once, but—"

"Have you any milk?"

"I'll look." In a minute he returned radiant, with a quart bottle.

"But he can't take it out of that."

"Want a spoon?"

"I'm afraid not. He's too new; You'll have to put on a coat and rouse the druggist. Tell him you want a bottle and nipple for a baby."

Charles obeyed orders meekly and in ten minutes waved the object of his quest triumphantly before Cora's eyes. I've got 'em, by Jove! Now, where's the milk?"

"Warm on the kitchen stove. Give me the bottle. I've got to wash it. You take the baby a minute. He can yell, can't he?"

At last, with gurgles of delight, the baby closed his little red lips around the soft, warm rubber, and Charles' troubles were at an end.

"He'll do now," said Cora, wearily putting her hand to her head. "I'll go if you don't need me any longer."

"But I do need you!" It was out before he could stop it. "Shall I tell you why?"

"No—not now," she protested faintly. "Tomorrow will be—better."

Roads are very muddy and the pike never was in such a terrible condition.

Plenty of Proof

From People You Know—From Westminster Citizens

The greatest skeptic can hardly fail to be convinced by evidence like this. It is impossible to produce better proof of merit than the testimony of residents of Westminster, of people who can be seen at any time. Read the following case of it:

M. E. Campbell, Prop. of meat market, 71 E. Main St., Westminster, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Moore's Drug Store, whenever I have been in need of a kidney tonic and they have always given satisfactory results. For backache and other kidney disorders, I consider Doan's Kidney Pills unequaled."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Campbell had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Millions of head of meat animals have been lost to the meat producing industry in Europe on account of the increased consumption of meat and the wasteful methods of killing. It will take years of careful breeding to restore the destroyed herds. For this reason we shall have for many years a relative scarcity of meat products and a correspondingly increased market value. Thus will American farmers profit for several years to come as a result of the war in Europe.

WINDIE HEIGHTS

Winter has at last bid adieu and Spring has arrived. Welcome balmy Spring. Another thunder gust was experienced on Monday evening and rain continues to fall at this writing, making very inconvenient travel for the mail carriers and those who are compelled to go.

Mr. Charles Grimes who has been confined to his room with pneumonia is able to be out again.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Smith and daughter Helen were visitors at the home of the formers brother, Mr. and Mrs. "Lis" Smith, on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Barnes, of Porters, visited Mr. B's. brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Hood, on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Smith and little daughter of Salem, visited Mrs. S's. parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Buckingham, on Sunday.

Those who visited Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wagner on Saturday were: Mr. and Mrs. Simon Keefer, Mrs. Alice Jordan, Mrs. Joseph Ward, of Shipley; Mrs. Ollie Caples and children Ralph and Glenn, of Salem.

The sale which was held Saturday evening at this place at the former home of Mrs. Elizabeth Shipley was largely attended and everything brought good prices.

The school at this place celebrated on Friday 24th inst., commonly called Maryland Day, the 282nd anniversary of the founding of the colony of Maryland. An elaborate program was rendered.

Miss Rena Snyder is threatened with blood poisoning from a very severely gathered finger caused by a slight cut.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of Bethesda Church, will hold an oyster supper in the hall at this place on Saturday, April 8th. Don't forget the date but come and bring your friends and have a good time as it may be the last one of the season.

Miss Flossie Hood spent from Friday until Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Will, of Salem.

Those who were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Snyder on Sunday evening were: Mrs. Kate Buckingham, Misses Margie Barnes, Maggie Murphy, Mabel Shipley, Lottie Barnes, Evelyn Shipley, Messrs. Emory Gorsuch and Frank Parker.

Mrs. A J. Wagner visited Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Wagner, of near Salem on Tuesday.

Mr. Michael Oakman, of Winfield, spent Sunday evening with Mr. William Gibson, of Caledonia.

Miss Landis Blizzard who has been suffering with her eyes, is in Baltimore at this writing receiving treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Keefer spent from Friday until Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wagner and family.

Mrs. Grammar Phillips, Misses Ruth and "Dolly" Phillips, Master Roby Phillips and Mr. Harry Buckingham were visitors of Mrs. Walter Allen on Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Will, of Salem, are receiving hearty congratulations on the birth of a fine ten pound boy.

GAMBER

There will be Christian Endeavor at Providence M. P. Church Sunday evening beginning at 8 o'clock. Topic The Consecration of Time. Ps. 90: 1-17. The president, Mr. Snyder W. Arnold, will lead the meeting. All are very cordially invited to attend.
