A FINE PROPOSITION

The good people of Westminster and the surrounding country have a fine proposition before them in the coming Chautauqua. They are to have grought to their very doors the finest combination of the various forms of culture and entertainment. Discussions of live topics of the day by deep thinkers who are strong and attractive speakers as well; inspirational talks on cultural subjects by those who have made these subjects their special study; music in all its varied forms, the surpliced boy choir, the brilliant artists, the stringed orchestra and the resounding band; drama, comic opera, jugglery and the latest novelties in the entertainment line; and movies of the unusual type, all these are included in the Chautauqua program, afternoon and evening for seven days; 32 entertainments in all, all lumped pretty nearly into the ordinary price of one.

Isn't it a fine proposition for any town? What are you going to do with it? Some 600 people have signified their intention to take it all in by securing season tickets in advance. But are you going to miss it?

The Chautauqua appeals individually because it brings you benefit and pleasure. Its appeal from the community standpoint is even stronger. It ought to be a matter of civic pride to have Westminster a Chautauqua town. Just as the town must be kept up-to-date in facilities, appearances and sanitation so it must be kept up-to-date in matters of cultural and intellectual, and Chautauqua is a strong force in this direction. Besides there is no other agency that so completely brings a community spirit and its beneficent influence is felt in other community enterprises. The Chautauqua will be here whether you expect to attend or not, but why not be a booster and be there?

The total value of crop production in the United States in 1915 is estimated at about $6,471,000,000, as compared with $5,929,000,000 in 1914, an increase of 9 per cent. The estimate of value of animal products for 1915 is $3,849,000,000, as compared with $3,783,000,000 for 1914, an increase of 2 per cent. The gross value of crops and live-stock products is thus estimated at $10,321,000,000 for 1915, as compared with $9,713,000,000 for 1914, an increase of 6 per cent. The farm production of forest products is estimated at $195,000,000 in 1915 and about the same in 1914.

Next March the office of president of the United States will be one hundred and twenty-eight years old. Of the total, 110½ years are accounted for by the men who were elected president, and 17½ years by men who were elected vice president and were promoted by chance to first place. This mathematical relation makes it more difficult than ever to understand why the vice presidency should have become something to be earnestly avoided.

Nearly everybody looks like some movie star, and those who have so much resemblance are distinguished by this fact, showing that Providence is still impartial in the distribution of its blessings.

A popular publicist may express his opinions so often that reiteration at last makes him unpopular—particularly if he has not the grace of literary originality.

Not a specially built car, but one taken direct from the show room. A brand-new Oakland Six that sells for $795 stood this marvelous non-stop motor endurance test right here in Baltimore.

All Oakland Sixes at $795 built just like the car that stood the test. Let us demonstrate.
