My dear Gally

Very many thanks for your letter containing the check which I received last evening. I am sorry to hear the account you gave of Fathers condition, and yet very thankful to find that you can report him as mentally comfortable. Mary's letters mentioned that he had seemed weaker. I do hope you will all of you remember to send to me to come whenever you think it will be best for me to do so. Our rivers are frozen up now, but the roads are good and I feel quite able to take the ride to Annapolis. I think from the weather reports.
