SIDE TWO

know what the difficulty is. Perhaps Uncle James may have some letters or papers that will throw some light upon the difficulty. It will of course affect Fanny's store as well as ours. Harry will be in Baltimore next week at the Convention, but as there will be no effort made to elect a Bishop, it will be important that he should be present at all the meetings. If there is any thing that he can enquire about between times he will be glad to do it. I am very glad to hear that Han was not completely used up by the journey, and hope that she will be much benefitted by the quiet and beauty of Lake George. The weather has been cold and damp with us, but this morning seems warmer. Cousin Emily is better, but does not look as well as I hoped she would do. Her cold is much better and she seems pretty well. Mary goes to Baltimore to day, to stay at Ned Murray's, and to be in the hands of the dentist. We have more than daily intercourse with Deedie's family, they are all well. Cousin has just been in and desires her love, and says she will write to Hannah before long. Mary and the girls join me in much love to both of you, and also the boys if they are with you.

Your affectionate Sister
Mary H. Murray
