SIDE TWO

that Mr Gwinn seemed to have about the title was that we should not pay the taxes and so gain a tax title. Now from your last letter we seem all to have been of the same mind on this subject, and both Harry and I were very glad to find that you had paid them. I can see the difficulty of acting, with the family so scattered as we are at present, but I would again urge that the matter should at once be referred to The Executors. According to your statement to me of the difficulty, we are holding property that did not belong to Uncle Galloways estate, and the Executors should be responsible for giving us property that did not belong to the estate. We should therefore go to them at once and let them know about it, and let them make it good to us. We have no right to keep the knowledge that we have either from the other owners of the property, or from the Executors. Of course if it is determined that the Sharp Street property does not belong to Uncle G's estate we will be called upon to refund all the back rent and the Executors and owners of the other store, will with reason say, why did you not tell us at once? The Executors are all old men and two of them in enfeebled health. Should we not at any rate consult some Lawyer upon the subject, that is as to whether the Executors are not responsible for giving to us property for which we can find no recorded title. Effingham is attending I suppose to his Father business in his absence would it not be well to get him to give us the legal views on the subject, and then let him write to
