SIDE TWO

Sorts until I hear from there are
I expect to be home by Christmas
I would be sorry to have Harry go
I would love to see you all
I remain as ever
Your affectionate
H. Murray

Dear Sally I find Harry has left one side of his sheet blank, so I will add a line to you. We were indeed all very much shocked to hear of the death of William Ellicott, poor children how I do pity them! It must have been very sudden, but he did look most shockingly when I saw him. I am glad to hear through Murray that the children will go to old Mrs Ellicotts for the present but what arrangement will they make for a permanent home! It will be a great shock to our travellers. I was in hopes you would come on down to see us for a few days at least, when you were so near as Baltimore. I am very glad indeed to hear that Hannah is improving, and hope she will find much enjoyment on your Steam Yacht. We are all getting along very well here the babies are not quite well with teeth on the way I suppose. Deedie has gone with them to pay a visit at Mt Holly. Sally has a good deal of headache which has been diminishing in size until the past week when she has been taking iron, and is now picking up. The rest of us are well, Rob jr is not as strong as
