Captain James S. Baer

Gallant Soldier—Citizen—Christian

After an illness of nine weeks, incident to the infirmities of extreme age, Captain James Shellman Baer died Sunday morning at his residence, at Tannery.

Captain James Shellman Baer was born in Baltimore, July 17, 1834, and lived there until after the Civil War. He was a son of Dr. Michael Shellman Baer a prominent and skillful physician and surgeon and of Matilda Chase Baer(nee Ridgely) a daughter of Judge Richard Ridgely, of Annapolis, Md. He was a brother of Dr. E. R. Baer, William H. and Arthur P. Baer and Mrs. John Wilson Brown of Baltimore who predeceased him. One sister Mrs. Graham Ridgley of Baltimore, survives him.

He was educated in private and parochial schools and at Loyola College and St. Mary's Military Academy.

He belonged to the old organization of Volunteer Firemen of Baltimore.

At the time of the Baltimore riot, April 17th, 1861, when the Sixth Massachusetts Regiment was attacked by a mob, while passing through Baltimore, Captain Baer took sides with the troops and the same night with a party of loyal citizens seized the Pikesville arsenal and held it in spite of efforts of Col. Harry C. Gilmore to capture it, for the Government until Union troops could take possession.

He served thropgh the War in the First Maryland Volunteer Infantry (Col. John R. Kenly) entering the service as 2nd. Lieutenant of Co. A, June 30, 1861, promoted to 1st. Lieutenant of Co. A. November 1, 1861, was wounded and taken prisoner May 23, 1862, at Front Royal, Va., and was confined at Charleston, Belle Isle and Libby prisons. He was exchanged and returning to his regiment was promoted for gallant service to Captain of Co. G. December 16, 1862, and served until the end of the conflict.

He was a member of the Grand Army Club, at Baltimore and of Burns Post, G. A. R., Department of Maryland, Westminster Md., of which he has been commander for many years. He also served as Department Officer for Maryland, and was an officer on the staff of the National Commander-in-Chief G. A. R.

At the close of the war he purchased and conducted for five years a farm near Relsterstown, Maryland.

In 1866 he married Susan K., oldest daughter of Henry B. Fesler, Frederick, Md., who died in 1914.

In 1870 he formed a partnership with his brother Arthur, as A. P. Baer and Bros., and purchased the Schlosser Tannery, at Tannery, Md. On March 1st, 1870, he moved to Tannery, Carroll county, Md., where he has resided ever since, and assumed personal charge of the Tannery.

In 1880, when the plant was sold to Messrs. England and Bryan and later when it was reorganized as the Carroll Oak Tanning Co. he remained continuously in charge as superintendent until he retired from active business.

He was orginally a Whig in politics, voted for Abraham Lincoln in 1860, and was a staunch and loyal Republican and one of the pioneer leaders of his party in Carroll county, but never aspired to office.

He is survived by three children—Dr. Harry F. Baer and Miss Blanche K. Baer, of Tannery, Md., and James S. Baer, Jr., of Baltimore.

He was directly descended from George Baer and John Shellman, who came from Germany to Frederick county early in the 18th century.

John Shellman was one of the survivors of Braddock's defeat. His grandfather, Henry Baer served under Captain Peter Mantz throughout the Revolutionary War and his father Dr. M. S. Baer and several uncles served in the War of 1812 and took part in the defense of Baltimore.

The funeral took place Tuesday morning. The services were conducted by the Rev. J. G. Fields, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The body was brought to this city for burial. The cortege was met at the station by members of Burns Post, Grand Army of the Republic, under command of Adjutant John H. Mitten; a detachment from Company H. Maryland National Guard, under First Lieutenant Harry W. Berwager, and a troop of Boys Scouts, under Scoutmaster Augustus Shriver. Following the religious services at the grave the Grand Army ritual of burial was read. The long roll was beaten by Earl Brown, and taps sounded by Paul Wimert, and three volleys fired over the grave by a firing squad from Company H. The pallbearers were H. Peyton Gorsuch, Judge James A. C. Bond, George R. Gehr, T. W. Mather, Sr., Joseph B. Boyle, Elias O. Grimes, B. W. Heagy and Jesse C. Sharrer. The honorary pallbearers were the 19 members of Burns Post, of which Captain Baer had been commander for years.

Mr. F. C. Sharrer was funeral director.

The family wishes to thank the neighbors and friends and especially the employees and officers of the tannery, who were so kind to them during Mr. Baer's illness and for shutting down the plant as a mark of respect during the funeral of the man who for so long a term of years was its superintendent, and for the beautiful floral emblem.

They arrived in Washington at eight-thirty o'clock Sunday night. On Monday morning at ten o'clock the men got in line for the parade and it was three-thirty in the afternoon before they were through marching. The train carrying the band left Washington at eleven-fifteen o'clock Monday night and the men reached this city on the fast mail Tuesday morning. The weather condition in Washington was very different from what we experienced in this city. Instead of snow, rain fell and made the streets very slippery. Sand was put on them to prevent the people from slipping. A high wind was blowing and the sand was blown in whirlwinds in the eyes of the immense throng which made some of them feel like they had pink eye. Despite all this the sky had cleared and the sun was shining brightly when the inauguration ceremonies began. But the wind continued to blow the sand and the day was very cold. The capital city presented a beautiful appearance in its decorations of the American Flag, but owing to the existing conditions between this country and foreign nations, the Capitol, together with all other public buildings, were closed to visitors and heavily guarded by soldiers.
