MATERIAL FOR SILOS

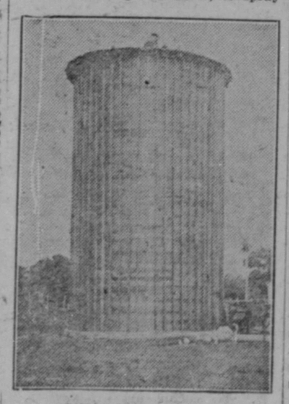

Untreated Wood Found Subject to More or Less Decay.

Deterioration Usually Occurs Near Foundation Where Certain Conditions of Moisture Favorable to Decay Exist.

Experience with silos built of untreated wood has shown that they are subject to more or less decay. Even such durable material as heart cypress or redwood is not immune. Deterioration usually occurs near the foundation of the silos where certain conditions of moisture favorable for the development of the fungus of decay exist. Decay may also attack sappy wood in any portion of the structure.

In 1913 about 100,000,000 board feet of high-grade lumber were used in silo construction and the consumption of lumber for this purpose has been steadily increasing ever since. The importance of some kind of preservative treatment to prevent decay in wooden silos, therefore, has become generally recognized. Several manufacturers of wood-stave silos are now making use of preservatives so that it is possible to purchase the silo material already treated.

Of the various preservatives in general use, a good grade of coal-tar creasote is very satisfactory for preserving timber. Almost any thorough method of treatment with this preservative ought to add to the life of the silo. Superficial methods, however, such as applying with a brush, dipping in the preservative, or spraying are not sufficient. By far the best method is to have the staves treated with the preservative in a closed retort under pressure, and when so treated they should last indefinitely and should be more satisfactory to the purchaser.

Silo of Treated Wood.

Those who are considering the purchase of treated silos should investigate carefully the methods used, and if greatest permanence is desired, should choose only material that has received a thorough pressure treatment. Silos built of such material have the additional advantage of reduction in the swelling and shrinking of the staves; and, hence, they can be kept tight more easily. Another advantage of silos built of well-treated wood is that they need not be painted.

FEEDING TRIAL AT MICHIGAN

Field-Bean Straw Found to Be Superior to Oat Straw for Fattening Lambs—Adds to Profits.

In a feeding trial at the Michigan experiment station, H. W. Mumford, now of the Illinois station, found field-bean straw superior to oat straw for fattening lambs. One may judge from this that such straw, therefore, has considerable feeding value for sheep at least, and it is likely to have equal feeding value for cattle and horses and to be no special source of danger to either. In our own experience, we have often thrown small quantities of bean straw out in the cattle yard, so the cattle could eat it if desired. What little there was of it they appeared to eat with relish; no doubt because it came as a change from their usual forage. It is not likely, however, that any kind of farm stock will eat it in large quantities because of its coarse nature. Also there will no doubt be a large percentage of waste left by the animals because of the woody character of the main stems of the bushes. It is in keeping with good economical practice, however, to allow the stock to eat such of this straw as it may desire. It is by utilizing the unmerchantable products of the farm in this way, and converting them into meat or other merchantable products that the farmer adds to his profits.

Officers of Company B. First Maryland Regiment Tuesday began a whirlwind recruiting campaign to bring the company up to full war strength. The armory will be open day and night. Five recruits have already been obtained. Company B was the largest company of National Guard troops to go to the Mexican border. Orders are expected at any time calling the company ino service. It is probable that Company B will be detailed to guard the bridges over the Potomac River at Williamsport and Harpers Ferry if it is found necessary to have them guarded.

Official reports from the Southern Department made public Wednesday say reports that many Germans have crossed into Mexico since diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany were broken off are without foundation. The record of the immigration authorities and of the Army intelligence service along the border show that only three Germans have passed into Mexico since February 3 in the Brownsville district, and 78 in the Laredo region, 34 of the latter having returned to the United States.

SELECTING BEST HERD BOAR

Why Is It Important for Breeder to Choose Animal With Much Care—Some Suggestions.

(By W. T. WASEL, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins.)

The time is approaching when the hog breeder must select and mate his breeding herd. It is of prime importance that the boar be selected with care. The expression "The male is half of the herd," is often quoted. This by experience has been found true. There is a uniform prepotency in both sexes; thus, the influence of the two parents on the offspring is theoretically equal. However, the boar has the greater influence on the herd. Each pig in the herd is sired by the one boar, but there are several dams.

A well-selected male used on a herd of inferior sows will make a great improvement in the offspring. However, the use of an inferior boar on wellbred sows will have a correspondingly bad result. The breeder should select his herd boar at an early date, and get him accustomed to his new surroundings. The system of feeding and management is very important in getting the male into the best condition before mating.

PROBLEM OF WARMING FEED

Resourceful Farmer Makes Use of Two Barrels and Fresh Manure to Heat Slop for Hogs.

(By R. C. ASHBY, University Farm, St. Paul.)

A resourceful Minnesota farmer reports that he has solved the problem of warming the slop-feed for his hogs. Two barrels are placed near the feeding troughs and a day's supply of feed is placed in each. The barrels are heavily banked with fresh manure from the horse barn. The heating of the pile warms the feed in the barrels, as each day's supply stands for 24 hours before using. Whenever necessary the banking is hauled away and a new supply packed about the barrels.

Opinions differ as to the relative efficiency of slop-feeding and dry-feeding, but disregarding the matter of efficiency, some hog raisers prefer slop-feeding for brood sows in winter for another reason. In winter hogs do not drink enough water unless the water is warm or supplied at frequent intervals. By mixing water with the grain the feeder controls the amount of water consumed by his hogs.

MAKING USE OF ROUGH LAND

Acres Not Suitable for Regular Farm Crops Will Support Sheep With Little Expense.

Every farmer with a few acres of pasture has a good chance to raise sheep. On many farms there are a few acres of rough lands not suitable for regular farm crops. This land with the proper attention would support a few sheep perhaps with very little extra expense for feed.

GARDEN WASTES ARE USEFUL

Pig Is Primary Waste-User and Must Be Kept in Its Place—Avoid Buying Feeds.

The pig that has to live exclusively on bought foods will cost more than its pork is worth, unless it is given a special valuation for home use.

The pig is primarily a waste user, and it must be kept in its place. Make it use the garden wastes.

ALFALFA IS CHEAPEST FEED

Profitable to Have Rack Filled With Third or Fourth Cutting Available All the Time.

It is without doubt profitable to have a rack filled with good third or fourth cutting of alfalfa available all the time so every bunch of hogs on the farm can eat this hay at their pleasure. It is the cheapest feed we have.
