My dear Gally

Our letters crossed each other. I sent mine to you yesterday morning and last night received the from you enclosing the check for the rent of the Store please accept my thanks for it. I will send it back to you and will get you to have it cashed for Sally when she gets to Philadelphia. I am sorry to hear that you are feeling so miserable, and hope you may find the change in the temperature will set you up again, but I can understand your desire to be fixed for the winter. We are sorry to
