WANTED VOLUNTEERS FOR THE ARMY OF THE SOIL

At a recent meeting in Baltimore of the Governor's Commission on Agricultural Preparedness, the question was asked: what is Carroll doing? And the reply was that as Carroll County has, for years, made such a good showing in farming, intensive gardening, etc, etc, she would scarcely be found to run behind her sister at the finish this momentous year.

However, it is possible, as we know, to improve ourselves and even Carroll should make such a big jump forward in crop yields of all kinds as to surprise herself, as well as to focus the attention of all Maryland upon her. And surely everyone is aware by this time of the present food stress over the entire world; and yet, do we, in our little corner, realize as we should, the far greater good emergency that certainly faces us unless we all bravely arise and with determination meet it.

We should put more food stuffs into the ground for both man and beast than we have even done in our lives before. These are no idle statements. There is ample proof of their truth, so just accept them and avoid regrets by "going the limit" of your ground and your labor capacity, right now.

And let us, in our cities and towns of Carroll, as well as through out the county, use, each, the means at his hand—if not an estate, a farm, a market garden, a city yard, a back lot, why then a window box. It will hold something, and it will prove, besides, your patriotic sympathy in the imperative thrift crusade; for this is not the year to balk at handicaps.

Grow something; teach others (or be taught by them) to become producers, in order that so many of us may cease to remain consumers only.

Form garden clubs. Cut out cards and literary and even sewing clubs for the time being or consolidate all of these and go out into your gardens. You will find it more profitable in many ways, than you think. And if you do not do this, take warning, you may be sorry later.

And, by the way, this is the particular kind of partnership team work that will cut down the high cost of living; it is a lot more efficacious than boycotting the retail dealer because of high prices over which he has no control.

We have not only to feed the soldier and the refugee, but we face in these coming months, the serious problem of adequately supplying our own families with sufficient quantities of health food; and therefore it behooves every able-bodied man and woman—and child too, if old enough to use a spade or hoe—to put something into the ground.

Let there be competitive school gardens with all the fun and excitement as well as the knowledge and real utility which they bring about. Get into touch with Mr. Grover Kinzy Country Agricultural Gent, Times Bldg., Westminster. He will tell you how to go about this.

Prepare early for home canning by forming canning clubs and be assured that of our three prime duties this year. First; extensive planting; second: thorough cultivating; third: careful conserving afterwards for next winter's needs. This last mentioned problem of preservation is by no means of the least importance.

Let each woman try to outstrip her neighbor in the canning field and do not neglect that other important work of women and boys and girls, (Men too, for that matter) chicken raising; for chickens and eggs are going to bring prohibitive prices in a few months, unless those who understand this interesting business promote it.

To sum up: Translate your personal energy and the ground at your disposal—be it little or much—into assured provender for your family as well as service to your country.

Finally, be optimistic—farmers, everybody—and be fearless, confident that if you do your duty, the good Lord who rules the elements will see you through.

SAT DURING ANTHEM; FINED $25

Dr. Richard I. Esslinger, 1514 East Baltimore street, who, with his father, was arrested Thursday night at the New Threatre Baltimore, when he failed to stand at the playing of "The Star-Spangled Banner," was fined $25 and costs by Justice Johannsen, at the Western Police Station, yesterday morning. The eldest Esslinger was dismissed when it was testified that he suffers from a malady which prevented his standing for a length of time.

Harry Brown, of Jersey City, N. J., was killed and property damage estimated at $100,000 was caused Sunday night, when a fire of undermined origin, followed by two explosions that shook the surrounding country for many miles, occurred in a new plant in course of construction for the Seaboard Bi-Products Coke Company, on the banks of the Hackensack River, near here. The explosions occurred in two large tanks, only a short distance apart, one of which contained 100,000 gallons of oil and the other 150,000. Three buildings and a number of shacks were destroyed.

COLLEGES BAN SUFFRAGISTS

Western Maryland And Washington Said To Be Opposed

The truth about Western Maryland College came out at the annual meeting of the Just Government League in Baltimore, Monday morning. Miss Lucy Branham stated that when she went there to organize a suffrage league among the students the plan was balked by the preceptress, Miss Robinson, who also frustrated her effort to put her request directly before Dr. Lewis, the President of the College.

An attempt to distribute suffrage literature among the students also failed, Miss Robinson meeting this request by taking a lot of the fliers herself, Miss Branham stated, "to see whether it was suited to the student's young minds."

Indeed the women's colleges in Maryland, so far as suffrage is concerned and with the exception of Goucher, are in precarious condition. Miss Branham is herself a graduate of George Washington College at Chestertown, but she said that any attempt on the part of the girl students to organize a suffrage league there would result in "putting the women out."

The meeting drafted a resolution which will be presented to President Wilson at the White House tomorrow by a large delegation from the League urging him to "interpret" the Presidential suffrage bill and the obligation of the Democrats to support it which the Women Suffrage party will present at the coming extra session of the Legislature.

W. M. ADJUSTMENTS

Representatives of the four organization of railway employes of the W. M. Railroad system were in conference at the W. M. depot, Hagerstown, last week, endeavoring to adjust their constitution, by laws and rules to the provisions of the Adamson eight-hour law. There are from three to five representatives of each organization here at the conference from Elkins, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Baltimore and other points.

The Danish steamship Josey, which arrived in Philadelphia, Monday, April 23, from Banes, was stopped in the Delaware bay by a torpedo boat destroyer and Gustavus Grierson, a German, was taken off the vessel and locked up at the navy yard for an examination. It is alleged that Grierson is a spy and has beep making detailed examination of the cuban cast and the sugar crop conditions.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN

Found unconscious Saturday afternoon in the tunnel of the Washington, Baltimore and Annapolis Railway where it passes under Annapolis road, and suffering from injuries supposed to have been caused by being struck by a train, John P. Cooper, 36 years old, 3910 Lloyd street, Arlington, died shortly afterward when he was being placed in the Mount Winans police ambulance. His body was taken to the morgue, where Coroner Kieffer decided that an inquest was unnecessary. Cooper was found by Christian Waltenmeyer and Walter Hoffman, of Westport, who telephoned the Mount Winans Police Station. He was suffering from a fractured skull, broken leg and severe bruises. Being unmarried, Cooper lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Cooper. He was employed as a meat cutter at Woodbine, this county.

It is probable that the people who complain about the idea of having a food dictator are not the same ones as those who are planning a good all round vegetable garden.

IN MEMORIAM

CECIL.—In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Sarah A. Cecil, who died three years ago today, April 26th., 1914.

Our hearts in deep sorrow returns to the day,
As memory recalls how death bore you away,
And left us in sorrow, in grief and in woe,
When we stood by your grave three years ago.

We cannot forget you, dear mother,
Though long may seem the years,
And often in the lonely hours
We wipe away our tears.

And we often sit and wonder
At what you would say,
If you only knew the changes
That have happened since that day.

Out in the silent grave yard,
Neath the sod and the dew,
Never for a moment forgotten,
In silence we think of you.

By her loving children,
Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Gunn.

IN MEMORIAM

CECIL.—In loving remembrance of our dear father, Rev. Geo. W. Cecil, who died one month ago to day, April 30th.

Mourn him not, he's safely anchored,
Angels led him all the way;
Rich in mercy, Jesus called him,
To that land of endless day.

In our home we sadly miss him
And his many acts of love,
But we know he's waiting for us
In our Father's home above.

In that home of fadeless beauty
He is now a shining star;
Dwelling in that home in glory,
With the golden gates ajar.

We shall meet him some bright morning,
Resting by the waters fair;
He is waiting for our coming
In the upper garden there.

By his loving children
Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Gunn.

KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Lewis, of Middletown, said Wheeler had a fracture at the base of the skull.

ENGLAND'S WHEAT CROP

The English Board of Agriculture has decided that 3,000,000 acres of pasture land in England and Wales must be plowed for wheat growing in the coming autumn. The order embraces land in addition to the pasture already plowed.

The fact that a fellow is too tired to go to a church service for the benefit of the soldiers does not prove that he couldn't attend a dance for the same worthy object.

Sunday Reading

READ I. THESSALONIANS, 5TH CHAPTER

Curious inquiries about "times and seasons," are commonly unprofitable and vain. "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation." The present time we ought to redeem, the present season of obtaining peace with God by faith in Christ, and of doing his will, we ought to embrace: and then we shall be safe and happy at all events. But if we regard the scripture, "we know perfectly that the day of the Lord cometh as a thief in the night," and that when sinners are presumptuously and carelessly "saying peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child, which they shall not escape." No man is sure that death and judgment will not thus surprise him; unless he continually expect and prepare for those approaching events. Numbers at this very hour are speaking peace and safety to themselves, over whose heads instantaneous destruction is hovering. And how dreadful will be the astonishment and consteration of the scornful infidel, the careless profligate, the proud Pharisee, or the hardened hypocrite, when sudden destruction shall thus seize upon him, and no possible method of escape can be found. As yet we are in the land of light, of hope, of prayer, of forgiveness; though we might justly long before this have been "cast into outer darkness." Nor are we enveloped with Pagon, Mohammedan, or Anti-christian darkness or delusion. We have the light of the gospel, and the holy scriptures afforded us, and we have been led to pay some attention to them. If then we be yet so in darkness, "that the day of the Lord would overtake us as a thief," our guilt must be pecularly aggravated Let us therefore seriously inquire whether we really be "the children of the light and of the day," by divine illumination, and by an obedient faith. Let us seek to render this evident, as well as to act consistently with our profession, by "casting off indolence and carelessness; that we "may not sleep as others do, but may watch and be sober." Let us leave sloth, self indulgence, ungodliness and worldly lusts to "the children of the night and of darkness;" but let us, who profess "to be of the day, be sober," vigilant, circumspect, and armed with "the breast-plate of faith and love," and with "hope as the helmet of salvation." Thus our evidence will continually increase, that "God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by the Lord Jesus," and that "whether we wake or sleep, we shall" surely "live together with him."

And when we remember that he purchased our deliverance from the wrath to come, by dying on the cross as a sacrifice for our sins, we shall not only be directed how to "comfort ourselves together," and to edify one another in our most holy faith," but we shall feel the constraining power of admiring, adoring, grateful love, and learn how to live to him, with whom we hope to live for even in glory.

The exhortations above given show us what we ought to be and to do, But we must remember that our hearts are naturally opposite to them; nor can any inward or abiding change be wrought in us, save by a divine power. Therefore every individual should turn the precepts and promises of God into prayers, for himself and his brethren: and while he uses every other means of grace, and vigilantly shuns all hindrances and temptation, he should still beseech "the God of peace himself to sanctify him wholly and that his spirit, and soul, and body may be preserved blameless until the coming of our Lord Jesus."

If these be our earnest desires, fervent prayers and diligent endeavors, the promises and covenant of our God, his power and love, and his immutable faithfulness authorize our fullest assurance, that, having called us by his grace, he will keep us by the same unto complete and everlasting salvation, whatever immense inward or outward difficullies may seem to render it most impracticable.

The most eminent servants of Christ want and value the prayers of their weakest brethren. Let us be thankful that these excellent epistles are reserved for our perusal also; and while we remember that the apostle "charged the Thesalonians, by the authority of the Lord Jesus to let them be read to all the holy brethren, some of whom might not be able to read them for themselves, we may be sure that an Antichrist alone would forbid the laity to read the scriptures, lest they should lead them into heresy. What then shall we think of those protestants, even pastors and rulers, who oppose the circulation of the scriptures, without note or comment, as greatly endangering either the Church or state, or both? We shall also hence learn the propriety of reading them in our public congregations; and we shall be stirred up to study them with more humble diligence and obedient faith; that thus "the grace of the Lord Jesus may be with us" also.
