there charges seemed to be very high. I do not agree with you exactly about the payment of these charges, while I think that Uncle James should unite with us in the expenses, I do not think we could ask him to pay the whole. I have never mentioned any thing about the matter either to Fanny or to Uncle James. I trust it can be satisfactorily settled, but it looks very doubtful to me. Many thanks to both you and Han for the kindness you have shewn to the girls. I never saw Sally look as fat and hearty, but I think that she is somewhat disfigured by it so I shall not be sorry if she loses some of the thirty pounds she has gained, provided of course her health continues as good. Nan has had a cold since her return, we have had an epidemic influenza going through the family. She has not however been much annoyed with it. We are very glad to hear that you and Han are better, and hope you will soon be quite up to par. We shall be very glad to have a visit from you, and if you desire to try any shooting, I believe there are a great many birds. I suppose you can not come until after Rollin's visit, which is generally an indefinite time. The girls account when they got home was, "Altho we are of course glad to get home yet we have had a delightful visit, and have enjoyed every moment of the time". They desire a great deal of love to each member of your family and I think they miss all of you as much as you miss them. Mary left us to day for Philadelphia and Cornelia and Emily went as far
