My dear Sally

Many thanks to you for your sympathy with us in this time of anxiety through which we are passing. Addie has indeed been a true friend to me and more like a sister than any thing else. She still continues desperately ill, I fear has lost ground again in the past twenty four hours but Morris has not as yet seen her so we have no medical opinion about it. Yesterday afternoon at five o'clock she had apparently a chill altho her skin was warm. She was all in a tremor and her
